Mrs. Allan Piggden gave a fine talk on "Current Events". Mrs. Beatty and Mrs. G. C. Moon reported the highlights of the Area Convention, held at Belleville quite recently.

Mrs. K. Nicol, who was privileged to visit the home of the United Nations in New York this past summer, gave a most interesting and informative paper on what she saw and learned.

Mrs. E. Moore gave a talk on the motto of the month, which was interesting.

A committee of Mrs. K. Nicol and Mrs. G. Hill was appointed to enquire, re the flag for the Memorial Park.

After a vote of thanks to all who took part in the program, and to the hostess, a pleasant, social half hour followed.

WEDDING SHOWER: MOCK WEDDING:

Prior to the recent wedding of Gwendolyn Mary Lloyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lloyd, Bannockburn, and George Watson, Both, B. Sc., son of Mrs. Samuel G. Both and the late Mr. Both, Northbrook, a number of showers in honour of the bride were given by her friends. At Bannockburn, the bride was treated to a preview of nuptial proceedings through the efforts of a committee, Mrs. H. C. Lloyd, Mrs. H. W. Webster, Mrs. Frank Palmer and Mrs. W. A. Norman. Forty guests gathered at hall of Mrs. Henry Lloyd, used for A.Y.P.A. activities, and along with the actual bride saw the pseudo-principals perform.

The Cast:

Slender in black surplus with purple cowl, skull cap and book, the Marryin' Man (Mrs. Dora Palmer) made "nosy-looking" remarks while celebrating the marriage of "George Barnabas Matthew Luke Basil Nathan Both" (Mrs. Joan Lloyd), dashin' and dandy in high hitched jeans, bare feet, boater hat and fancy weskit, to "Gwen Agnes Margaret Annabelle Wilhelmina Hilda Cecile Lloyd" (Mrs. Minnie Norman), heavily veiled in curtain lace, snagged at intervals in her Daisy Mae Wig, but revealing her gown with apple design, below which her dainty toes (all ten) peeked out, and carrying a bridal bouquet of petunias and catnip.

The bridesmaid (Mrs. Harriett Webster) wore a sequined house robe and bonnet with a high falutin' startled rose prettily nodding. Lounging nonchalantly beside the groom, the best man (Mrs. Edeline Lloyd) sucked a pipe, stored the smoke behind his whiskers and laced felt hat, squeezed his pet skeleton, and sank down deeper into his rubber waders. The flower girls, (Helen and Joan Woods), carried nosegays nose high, and bright ribbons on their pigtails. The usher (Mrs. Lottie Woods), "ushed" until the buttons on his "single-breasted" strained. The father of the bride (Mrs. Theresa Kilpatrick) fearsome in "cut-away" coat and trousers with his union ("I aims to see this union through") suit showing, and burying the barrel of a shotgun in the groom's back, was reminded to make his "presence felt" by the mother of the bride, (Mrs. Lena Lloyd), who wore the "most"—most skirts, most ties, most flowers, and most interested expression.

The Marriage Disertation in part, "This female has complied with all the regulations of the Game and Fisheries Act and the Bell Telephone Act in running this male creature down." "This male has engineered things until he came into the Iron Ring of the hitching rack." To the groom "Will you promise not to take her around in your greasy old machinery, or bring a steam shovel home at night?" To the bride "Will thou when he wishes to talk to you, snap 'Line Busy'?" When the bride said, "No, I won't marry him", the bride's mother said, "Yes you will, we've kept you long enough." The groom placed a chicken band on her finger and the high Scribe said, "They're hitched". The groom rallied to a protest. "This here marriage ain't legal, her Paw didn't have a license for his gun."

The tabloid was over and the honoured guest was ushered to a seat beneath an umbrella and balloons and presented with a wagon-load of gifts. Serving lunch were Joan Lloyd, Winnie Norman, Leona Hannah, Betty Anne Foster, Lottie, Viola and Dorothy Woods. Contributing to the lunch were the four co-hostesses, and Mrs. Hannah, Mrs. Harold Lloyd, Mrs. Jane Green, Mrs. Francis, Mrs. Eva Davidson, and others, all working together to make one of the happiest parties for the prospective bride, who thanked her friends warmly for their entertainment and lovely assortment of linen, china, pictures and silver.

Other showers held for Gwen were by the staff of the Bell Telephone Office, Madoc; by Mrs. Mantle (nee Marilyn Davidson) at her home in Marmora; and by Mrs.

VISIT OF BISHOP

At the regular evening service at St. John's Church, Madoc, Sunday, November 28, the preacher was the Rt. Rev. K. C. Evans, who is the Bishop of this Diocese. Also present, in an official capacity, was the Secretary of Synod, the Rev. Stanley Andrews.

The Bishop, after talking to the laymen present of their duties to the community in making it a better place in which to live, spoke on the Season of Advent, which is upon us, a season of preparation for Christmas. He illustrated his sermon with vivid stories describing how Christ is the light that lights every man and points out the way to Almighty God.

After the service a congregational gathering was held in the Parish Hall, where tea and sandwiches were served by the Guild Ladies and others. The Bishop and Secretary of Synod mixed freely with the people, and at 9 p.m., before their departure for Kingston, spoke briefly to the people.

We hope that it will not be long before these two representatives of the Church are with us again.

JUNIOR CONCERT

On Friday evening, November 26, the Junior Auxiliary of St. John's Church held a delightful concert in aid of St. Mathias Church, Toronto, which parish was hard hit by Hurricane Hazel.

The concert consisted of musical numbers, dancing, and a play entitled "Babes In The Woods". The fine quality of the performance showed clearly that much preparation had gone into this effort, and all the Junior Auxiliary members are to be congratulated.

The program consisted of the following: Miss Faye Robertson rendered three dances attired in appropriate dancing costumes. Miss Dianne Dooher sang the children's hymn, "Jesus Bids Us Shine". Miss Pamela Armstrong played a short, delightful piece on the piano. There were other musical numbers. All the Juniors took part in the play.

The program opened and closed with "O Canada" and "God Save The Queen", respectively.

A good number turned out to see this fine effort and it was noticed that many were from other churches, which was very gratifying to see.

COMMUNICATION

19 Shortt St., Toronto, Ont.
November 30th, 1954.

TO THE EDITOR:
Dear Sir:

In the name of conservation and in the next by-election anywhere I will fight and win in any riding, even in the riding of Frost himself. Ninety per cent of the people will stand on their feet and demand they would rather see our wild life alive than dead, and it is too late now to stop the slaughter. For the past seven years I have told you so, especially the use of dogs on deer, as 80 per cent of the deer are shot standing still as they listen to the hounds on their trail and hunters call that sport. They have no more correct account of the possible deer population than they have of the ducks from time to time. The press of November 18 showed a picture of 14 hunters with 14 deer in a row together with dogs. All that deer shot in one week, and they call it sport. Another picture showed the bull moose birch bark horn being used, which is sure death to the moose, and sport of this sort is absolutely shameful.

Another article of yesterday states 100,000 licenses sold this Fall while punch drunk-with-power governments do nothing about it, all of which goes on for the sake of the mighty dollar and cents, and no wonder a writer once said, "It would have been better had the world been populated with birds of paradise and deer than the human race who kills his own species."

Yours very truly,
Herb McKnight.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION

Reeve Murray Smith and Councillors Percy Derry, Dorian Stewart and Kenneth West were returned to office by acclamation at nominations held in the Town Hall last Friday night. Jack Baker, Chairman of streets, notified the Returning Officer that he did not intend to stand for re-election. Tom Burnside was elected by acclamation as the fourth Councillor.

Tom Rupert was again re-elected member of the Hydro Commission, being the only nomination.

Chas. Johnston, George Duffin and Lloyd Blue, members of the Public School Board, whose term of office expired, declined re-election and their places were filled by John Bristol, George Fox and Kenneth Holmes.

About fifty ratepayers were in attendance and Reeve Smith and Councillors Derry, Stewart and West gave short addresses reviewing year's activities and answered questions relating to village affairs.

There was considerable discussion re the water storage tanks in the west and east end of the village not served by the waterworks.

There was also some criticism about the condition of the streets, caused by carrying dirt from the streets excavated for waterworks. The park and the new rest rooms were mentioned and Councillor West said he intended to try to induce some organization to supply the necessary fixtures in the cement block building erected this summer.

Unfortunately Charles Johnston, retiring Chairman of the School Board, was unable to give his report as the hour was so late and most of the ratepayers had left before he was called upon.

T. H. Rupert and Clarence Farrow spoke briefly on Hydro affairs. The Hydro showed an operating profit for an eleven month period of $3,407.74 and the Hydro planned to replace many surfaces in the village.

ANNE HIRST

Your Family Counselor

"Dear Anne Hirst: For the second time, my wife has left me because of my drinking. ... I don't drink every day (and never heavily) but I drive a truck sometimes more than eight hours and when I'm through I'm tired and on edge. A couple of beers help me relax. ... Also, my wife accuses me of seeing other women when ever I've taken a beer. This is not true, and never has been. "We have a baby boy, and I love these two more than anything in the world. I just can't keep on living if they do not come back home."

"Can you suggest any way to get them back?"

JOE"

UP TO YOU

• Face the truth: Your wife is determined not to live with a man who takes even a few beers. She demands nothing less than total abstinence. • Knowing how many homes have been broken up, and other heartbreaking tragedies which have resulted from drinking, she has made up her mind she will not run the risk. If you think her decision fanatical, remember that many a man has started with a few beers and ended by drinking excessively. It is this fear that persuades your wife to take her stand, and I expect she will stick to it.

• If your wife and baby mean as much to you as you claim, there is only one answer: self-control. • Stop taking any alcoholic drink at all. Other hardworking men have found ways to relax from exhaustion; your doctor can help you there. • Let your wife know that you have ceased drinking. • When you have been without it long enough to show her you intend to stay that way, she should believe in you again — and what a happy day that will be for you both! • It will take longer this time to prove she can depend on your promise. After all, you should have learned that she meant what she said the first time she left you. • It is alcohol — or your family. • How can you hesitate?

A GIRL'S RIGHTS

"Dear Anne Hirst: I am 17, a high school senior and an only child. My parents won't give me any of the privileges all my girl friends have! They won't let me go to church with the girls, and of course I can't have dates. I just go to school, come home and do some work and go to bed. It is a lonely way to live. "They have no reason to treat me so badly, and it worries me. Why are parents so strict? I know it isn't love. I've even considered leaving home, but that is a bad idea and might get me into trouble. Please help me."

IRENE"

• A girl 17 and a senior, too, who has never given her parents any concern, deserves a wider social life, in my opinion, than you have. • The discipline that parents practice is based on their love for their children (whether you believe it not) and their anxiety to protect a daughter, especially, from the wrong friends and activities until she is old enough to use good judgment. Because you are an only child you are peculiarly precious to your mother and father, and they lean over backwards to shield you from any possible harm.

• If you have been frank with me, I think you should be allowed to visit your friends, go with them to movies and sports events, and have dates with nice boys whom your parents approve. Your personality will be developed, and you will learn how to get along with people, and so mature earlier.

• Show this opinion to your parents today. If your mother would like to write me her side of the question, I shall be glad to have it.

• A husband proves his love not by words, but by living the kind of life which pleases his wife most. — And anything which contributes to her contentment is worth whatever sacrifice it costs. ... Anne Hirst is here to help you out in any time of trouble. Write her, frankly, at Box 1, 123 Eighteenth St., New Toronto, Ont. She never betrays a confidence.

HIS BRAIN 'SPRANG A LEAK'

George Hardyman, 66, of Chorkes, U.S.A. drove 18 miles along a busy highway on the wrong side of the road — and did not know it. He was driving along and suddenly lost the ability to tell left from right after a blood vessel in his brain "sprang a leak."

A doctor said that this "leak" would cause a temporary complete reversal of sensation about horizontal direction. A case against Hardyman for careless driving was dismissed.

Stuff Bird With Two Dressings for Double Taste Treat

By DOROTHY MADDOX

Just to make life more interesting, why not use two different kinds of stuffing for your holiday turkey? Use one for the chest cavity; another, more exotic one, for the neck cavity.

If your family goes in for stuffing, eating lots of it, bake extra amounts in greased individual molds. That's much better than trying to cram too much into the turkey, because turkeys should be loosely stuffed.

Some stuffings are simple and straightforward; others are fairly complex. Here are three recipes using enriched, yeast-raised bread as a base—each more than enough to fill the neck cavity of a 15-pound turkey, with enough left over for the casserole dish.

Toasted Almond Stuffing

Eight cups soft bread crumbs, ¼ cup melted butter or margarine, 2 cups chopped toasted almonds, 1¼ cups green celery tops, 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 2 eggs, 2½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup grated onion.

Combine all ingredients thoroughly and use to stuff cavities of turkey.

Sausage Stuffing

Eight cups stale bread cubes, ¼ cup melted butter or margarine, 1 cup finely chopped onions, 1½ cups chopped celery stalks and leaves, ¼ pound bulk sausage, 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 3 tablespoons minced parsley, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 egg, 1 cup chicken stock or milk.

Cook sausage. Combine with remaining ingredients and use to stuff turkey cavities.

We used to have oyster stuffing every Christmas when I was a small girl, and this one reminds me of the way my grandmother's used to taste.

Oyster Stuffing

(Yield: about 10 cups; enough for a 12-pound turkey)

One half cup butter or margarine, ½ cup chopped onion, ¼

Not two-face but twice-stuffed is this turkey, a new taste-treat for you and yours during the holidays.

cup diced celery, ¼ teaspoon Tabasco, 8 cups soft bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 2 cups drained, chopped oysters or 1 can (16 ounces).

Melt butter, add onion and celery and cook until onion is yellow, but not brown. Stir in Tabasco. Add to bread crumbs with parsley, salt and poultry seasoning. Mix lightly. Add oysters.

THE FARM FRONT

John Russell

Since the introduction of DDT in 1945, hundreds of pesticides have been introduced for a wide variety of end uses. After their benefits have been amply demonstrated, some people in Canada (and the United States) have made claims that pesticides are slowly poisoning the human race. Naturally, others became jittery about their use. Just what is the right answer insofar as Canadians are concerned?

Perhaps the alarmists and the alarmed both can get comfort out of what S. C. Barry, director of production services, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, had to say recently before the second annual conference of the Canadian Agricultural Chemicals Association in Montebello, Que.

Mr. Barry pointed out that before an industrial firm can place a pesticide on the market, it must first register it with the plant products division of the production service as called for by the Pest Control Products Act. Before a product is endorsed for registration, various scientific sections of the Department of Agriculture or the government are consulted. The Science Services test the materials to see if they live up to manufacturers' claims; guidance of animal pathologists is sought with respect to pesticides intended for animal purposes; discussions are held with the Department of Health and Welfare and the National Pesticide Committee regarding safety from the human health factor.

Assessing the human and animal health hazard, according to Mr. Barry, is more difficult than determining effectiveness. Animals or humans that take in DDT, apparently, store some of the material in the original or less toxic form in their tissues. But it has been well established that even abnormal exposure to DDT results in tissue deposits which are only a very small fraction of the amounts necessary to produce any ill effects on health.

A fair appraisal of the situation, he said, is that all pesticides registered in Canada are effective for the purpose claimed and present no hazard to health if used as directed. With the combination of the serious desire of the agricultural chemicals industry to fully test and stand behind its products and the safeguards provided under the Pest Control Products Act, the Canadian public has quite adequate assurance that pesticides are effective and safe for the purpose for which they are intended.

Cattails — the graceful rush-like plants common to most Canadian swamps and sloughs — may soon become a favorite dish on our menus. Two Syracuse University scientists have been exploring the possibilities of utilizing this wild plant economically. They have already found that cattail roots can be eaten like potatoes. They've made cattail flour from which they've baked cattail cookies. They've used the fibre from the stem for caulking barrels to make them water tight.

Other industrial uses for the plant are being investigated.

While the last 40 years have been taken up with adapting tillage practices to the tractor, the next decade will see greater emphasis on the adaptation of tillage to specific crops and soil conditions.

This forecast comes from C. S. Slater of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, who says that present day tillage — plowing, harrowing, packing and cultivating — has been applied too extensively and too intensively. From the standpoint of soil structure maintenance, tillage is apt to be more harmful than beneficial in that it sets up erosion hazards and exposes the soil to deterioration by freezing and other climatic factors.

Mr. Slater foresaw an overall decrease in total tillage to protect the soil. Minimum tillage requirements will be established for different crops. Weed control with chemicals will be more widespread to reduce total tillage.

Greater use of chemical nitrogen will help reduce the need

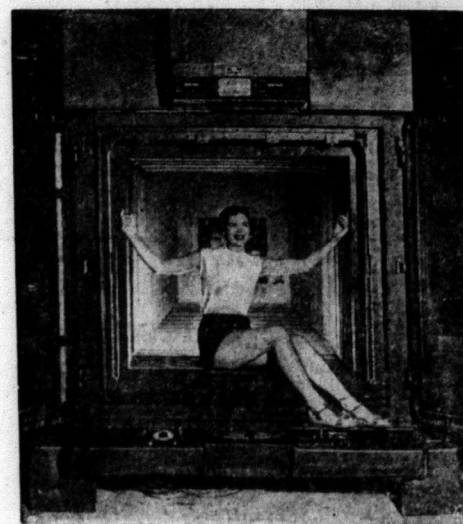

Wonder-Working Acid

One of the miracles of modern chemistry is the usefulness of sulphuric acid. In some way or another, it has had a hand in producing almost every single thing we use every single day. Did you know that each person in Canada uses about a hundred pounds of sulphuric acid in a year?

Not in its pure form, of course. Like so many chemicals, it almost never appears as a consumer product. Instead, it is used with other materials to produce new materials, things like synthetic detergents, steel for automobiles, rayon for clothing. The kitchen refrigerator is just about the last place you would expect to find a corrosive acid. But the frig. itself wouldn't be there without it. Sulphuric is widely used for cleaning the steel before the white coating is put on and for making the fertilizer which helped grow the food inside. Even the milk we drink has been tested with sulphuric acid to determine its butterfat content.

In clothing, every pound of rayon consumes its quota of sulphuric acid. And we'd be a pretty drab-looking lot without chemical dyes, which again are dependent on this acid for their manufacture. It is important in paper making, in manufacturing colors for paints, in refining glues, in tanning leather and making the alum used to clarify drinking water. But by far the greatest work of this powerful acid is in producing the food we eat. Hardly a food product is grown today without the help of fertilizers and the fertilizer industry is by far the largest user of sulphuric acid. More than half the sulphuric made in Canada today goes into the manufacture of food for the crops of this country and of many foreign lands.

Stumbling blocks and stepping-stones are one and the same; it all depends on how you use them.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

There are presently only fourteen 10-year players in the National Hockey League. And, considering the high speed and heavy bodily contacts of hockey, it's a wonder that so many have survived 10 or more years of ice warfare.

And it's even more surprising that in the present season, the most amazing player campaigning today is getting closer to the day when he can say he broke into major hockey 20 years ago.

For it's almost 20 years since the name of Milton Conrad Schmidt first appeared in a Boston club's line-up. It was late in 1936 or early 1937 that he was called up to relieve some Bruin situation, and played enough games to bag a couple of goals.

Schmidt weighs around 180 today, but he was a skinny 18-year-old when he first played for Bruins. He grew fast and he learned fast. Three seasons of absence from the major league hockey front, while he wore an air force uniform, didn't halt Schmidt's hockey career. The hub of the Kraut Line came back in 1945-46. And in '46-47 he enjoyed his biggest scoring season — 27 goals.

Among players currently active in the Big Top, only six had scored 200 goals or more when the present campaign started. Schmidt is, of course, one of these, with 225 to his credit when the season opened. In points-making, he excelled all but one of the current top figures. Rocket Richard started the season with 651 points, 384 goals and 267 assists. Schmidt had the greatest number of assists of any active player, 338 — a points total of 563.

Schmidt, Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer, all natives of Kitchener, Ont., became hockey partners early in their careers at Boston. They lived together, played together, and as the Kraut Line, became one of the great threesome of all time, a clean-going line with tremendous scoring punch. In one season (1939-40) they led the scorers in 1-2-3 order.

The Krauts were broken up when Bauer retired to a business career in Kitchener after the 1946-47 season. Schmidt and Dumart carried on. Dumart was still with the Bruins last season, and, like Schmidt, one of 26 players to score 200 goals in their careers in NHL history. For durability they rate high in the tough winter game.

Your comments and suggestions for this column will be welcomed by Elmer Ferguson, c/o Calvert House, 431 Yonge St., Toronto.

His Downfall Shocked The World

A few weeks ago a ceremony was performed in Chelsea, London, that recalls a famous author whose dazzling career was brought to an untimely end in 1905 by a scandal that shocked the whole country.

On the wall of No. 34, Tite Street will be unveiled one of those blue porcelain plaques that the London County Council fixes to the houses in which great men once lived. The name on the plaque will be Oscar Wilde's.

A disgraced and ruined man at the age of forty-six, Wilde died in a third-rate hotel in Paris in 1900. Since then no less than a hundred books have been written about him. Which raises the question: has he remained the centre of such interest for more than half a century, because his plays are performed everywhere and his books sell in their thousands? This can scarcely be so, for Wilde's literary output was comparatively small. In fact, it is probably true to say that nowadays his literary reputation rests on nothing more substantial than a single play and a poem.

His play, "The Importance of Being Earnest," is certainly a masterpiece, and has been filmed. His poem, "The Ballad of Reading Goal," is still frequently quoted. Other works he wrote, however — among them a once celebrated essay entitled "The Soul of Man Under Socialism" — are for the most part forgotten.

To what, then, can we attribute Wilde's increasing fame? Now is it that his name is known to millions of people who have never read a book he wrote, or seen one of his plays acted? Perhaps the answer is to be found in what the man himself once confided to a friend:

"Shall I tell you the great secret of my life?" he said, smoking one of the perfumed, gold-tipped cigarettes he never liked to be without. "It is that I put my genius into my life, but only my talent into my work. Writing bores me so!"

"Bored, or otherwise, he was forced to write in order to live. But there can be no doubt that life, as he chose to live it — extravagantly, and with unbelievable recklessness — turned out to be far more dramatic than any plot he ever invented. Born a hundred years ago last month, Oscar Wilde achieved considerable notoriety shortly after leaving Oxford University where a great future had been predicted for him. As the leader of a poetic cult in London, he was frequently caricatured in the pages of "Punch" wearing long hair and satin knee-breeches.

But this poetic phase did not last. In a remarkably short time Wilde had become the idol of smart society.

This position he achieved through his charm and his exceptional wit. As an entertaining conversationalist he was considered second to none, and on more than one occasion Edward VII (then Prince of Wales) enjoyed his scintillating company. Examples of his witty remarks he was always throwing off in the course of conversation are the following:

"Work is the curse of the drinking classes."

"Genius is born, not paid."

"Her capacity for family affection is extraordinary. When her third husband died, her hair turned quite gold from grief."

And Away We Go — Four persons seem to fit comfortably inside the "Minicar," a three-wheeled automobile, on display in London, England. Designed along modern lines, the car can supposedly get 90 miles to a gallon of gas.

"I can resist everything — except temptation."

How strangely prophetic was that last utterance of the ugly shape of things to come. For if Wilde had not been tempted to bring an action for criminal libel against the Marquis of Queensberry (the creator, incidentally, of the famous boxing rules), his life might not have ended as disastrously as it did.

What happened was this: Wilde's morals had been frequently criticized, the climax coming when Queensberry openly accused him of indulging in unnatural practices.

Recklessly — since his private life at this time did not bear investigation — Wilde took the marquis to court. And he lost his case. Not only that, but he was himself put in the dock and charged with a number of serious offences.

After two lengthy trials (at the first the jury disagreed), Wilde was found guilty and sentenced to two years' hard labour.

The wit he indulged in when under cross-examination by the prosecuting counsel (an Irish barrister who was later to become Lord Carson) availed him nothing. His brilliant career ended with the suddenness of a light switched off.

Wilde made plain in a pathetic letter he wrote in Reading Prison just how completely changed his life was:

"On November 13th, 1895, I was brought down here from London. From two o'clock till half-past two on that day I had to stand on the centre platform of Clapham Junction in convict dress, and handcuffed, for the world to look at."

When people saw me they laughed. That was, of course, before they knew who I was. As soon as they had been informed, they laughed still more."

There could be no greater contrast than that between the gay farce "The Importance of Being Earnest," which was produced three months before he was sent to prison, and the sombre "Ballad of Reading Goal," written after his release.

Particularly interesting are the circumstances surrounding the latter composition. Exercising in the prison yard one morning, Wilde noticed in front of him a new young prisoner. This was Charles Thomas Woodridge, a trooper in the Royal Horse Guards.

He was to be hanged for the murder of his flighty wife, who had been passing herself off as a single woman. Stung by jealousy when he met her on the road between Windsor and the village of Clewer, the husband had cut her throat.

Deeply moved by the pitiful story, Wilde wrote his great ballad, which has long since become world-famous.

But is one classic farce, and a single ballad (even a ballad which ranks with the best in the language) a sufficient achievement to keep an author's name as much alive as Oscar Wilde's is today? Opinion on this question is divided; a popular theory being that Wilde has established himself in the permanent memory of mankind by reason of his personal tragedy.

Certainly his trial brought in to the open a subject which up to that time had been unmentionable. Since then, Wilde, its central figure, has been looked upon as the victim of a law relating to sexual offences that at the very moment doctors and others are seeking to have changed.

Because it is felt that a hospital, rather than a prison, is the place where those who commit unnatural offences should be sent for treatment, Wilde has come to be looked upon as something of a martyr.

Only in the years to come will the change, or otherwise, in public opinion with regard to these matters, decide whether it is as a distinguished author, or notorious convict, that Oscar Wilde's name lives on.

Ewart Potgieter, above, the George Mikon of the boxing world, wears those shorts for two reasons while he's training at Johannesburg, South Africa. They're comfortable, and less expensive than tailor-made trousers. The boxer is threatened with a knockout every time he passes through a door—Ewart is 7 feet, 2 inches tall. Below, his outside glove is compared to the regulation boxing glove.

A RECORD COLLECTION
Charles Innes of Edinburgh is only 21, but already he has collected 4,200 gramophone records.

Charlie started seven years ago. Now the walls of his bedroom are lined with shelves of records. The place is like a music shop.

A gift of some old records set him off on his hobby. Soon he was going round second-hand shops in his spare time searching for more. As his collection grew, he found difficulty in keeping count of all his records, so he devised his own filing and cataloguing system. This works so well that he can pick out any record in a few seconds.

An unusual feature of his collection is his 17 different recordings of the "Blue Danube." Among his prize possessions are old-type cylindrical records about 50 years old. He plays them on a special gramophone. On one of his shopping expeditions, Charlie secured 40 of these with an old gramophone thrown in for only ten shillings.

CHUGGIN' ALONG—Two persons can supposedly ride in comfort in this tiny three-wheeled auto. It was designed by electrician Andre Simes, of Boulogne Sur Seine, France. Powered by a one-horsepower motor and capable of reaching speeds up to 50 mph, the homemade car was the hit of a Paris gadget exhibit.

LET'S GET ON WITH IT

It is important to have the Trans-Canada Highway completed as soon as possible, declares The Financial Post.

The loss in tourist revenue by Canadians forced to detour through the United States, when motoring between Eastern and Western Canada, and by U. S. visitors, who should spend more time here, if there were a good east-west road in this country, is impossible to assess. There is also the Canadian east-west trucking that now must go through the U. S.

Equally important to loss of revenue, is the effect on national prestige of having to depend on another country, no matter how friendly, to provide us with a useable east-west traffic artery.

There are good reasons why Canada hasn't yet built a modern highway from coast to coast. There is no reason, however, why the utmost energy should not be expended in providing this very necessary item as soon as humanly possible.

FOREST PROTECTION

This week we had very little rain and the hazard did get into the medium bracket. The recent rains have taken nearly all the leaves off the trees and it is at this time of year that a bad fire hazard can develop. Usually under these conditions woods travellers start one or two fires, but we are asking their special co-operation in helping to prevent Forest Fires for the remainder of the fall.

Quite a number of the rangers were laid off this week. However, we still have sufficient staff to

NORWOOD ARMOURIES
BURNED

Twenty thousand dollars fire and wind damage resulted to Norwood Armouries, during the hurricane recently. The fire is believed to have been caused by an overload on the refrigerator circuit in the canteen. A flag pole had fallen across hydro wires, just outside the building. Firemen were handicapped when the hydro power was disrupted, and the high winds fanned the blaze. A television set was ruined and a borrowed piano was damaged by water pouring down from the balcony.

Keep the key towers manned, and other rangers, who are finishing the season's projects, are available in case of fire.

In the days of Good Queen Anne, scrofula, a form of tuberculosis, was common in England. It was called "the king's evil", because the touch of royalty was supposed to cure it. At least one royal person, Charles II, had no faith in the lure. However, as others did, he seems to have felt he better go through with the ceremony. He compromised by touching the sick person, presenting the customary coin, and then saying, "God give thee health and better sense."

GRAZING HAS SERIOUS EFFECT ON RETURN FROM WOODLOTS

Did you know that the grazing of woodlots has a very serious effect on their worth? Returns are lower and so is their sale value.

In a recent survey of southern Ontario woodlots, 63 ungrazed woodlots yielded an average annual return of $10.21 per acre; 65 grazed woodlots yielded an average annual return of $5.62 per acre.

Nothing could be more revealing than these figures, gathered by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Without considering the actual damage done to woodlots by grazing, let us look at the quantity and quality of pasture provided by woodlots. The quantity of pasture provided by a woodlot, as compared to that provided by an open field, of equal area, is 1.6. The quality or nutritional value of the woodlot plants are 1.5 of the quality of the average open pasture plants. Therefore, one acre of open pasture would provide the same quality and quantity of pasture as would a 30-acre woodlot.

If a man is short of pasture land, he would be better off to clear one or two acres of his woodlot for open pasture, and keep his livestock out of the woodlot.

Though the Christmas Seal Sale, to obtain funds for tuberculosis, is held all across Canada at the same time, the money raised is spent in the area where it is contributed.

BUTTER STOCKPILE HITS RECORD 79,000,000 LBS.

The Government, though its price support program, has accumulated the biggest butter surplus in history, but here will be no below-cost bargains to Canadian consumers.

Federal officials said the Government's selling price will be the same as last year, 61 cents a pound wholesale, for deliveries to Montreal and Toronto, with slight price variations because of differences in freight charges at other Canadian points.

Though the Government has shown reluctance to disclose the full extent of its butter stockpile, it was learned that it has about 79,000,000 pounds. The stock is made up of 9,000,000 pounds carried over from last year's purchases, and some 70,000,000 accumulated from the summer surplus production season.

This is the biggest stockpile in history, some 26,000,000 pounds higher than the 53,000,000 pounds gathered in Government warehouses last year.

The cows are mainly responsible. Green pastures, enriched by heavy rains, have helped the cows fill the country's milk cans to an all-time high.

Creamery butter production has climbed to 25,680,000 pounds in the first nine months of 1954, up from 24,730,000 in the similar 1953 period. For the full year, butter output may rise to a record 335,000,000 pounds from last year's 325,000,000.

Consumption also has increased, but only slightly, to 21,600,000 last

DUKE PUBLICLY THANKS CANADA FOR FINE TRIP

The Duke of Edinburgh publicly thanked Canada Thursday night for the reception it gave him last summer.

"I had a perfectly magnificent time," the Duke said. "Everyone was the soul of hospitality and kindness."

The Duke made his remarks in a three-minute off-the-cuff address at the inaugural dinner and dance of the Canadian Universities Club. About 350 graduates from 15 Canadian universities attended, and stayed on for dancing until the small hours.

Unofficial reports are that consumption declined in September, while margarine sales have risen sharply. For the full year, this year's butter consumption may vary only slightly from 308,700,000 pounds in 1953.

COOPER AND REMINGTON W. I.

The regular monthly meeting of the Cooper and Remington W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. W. Rollins. The meeting opened with Mrs. Hark Rollins playing quietly a patriotic Hymn, in memory of Remembrance Day.

Mrs. Rex Rollins gave a Remembrance Day reading, and Mrs. Geo. Harris explained the Union Jack, and its colouring. All sang one verse of "Abide With Me", closing this part of the service.

The Mary Stewart Collect was repeated, and the Roll Call was answered by 22 members and one visitor.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

It was moved by Mrs. George Graham, and seconded by Mrs. Lynn McCoy, we purchase more chairs. It was moved, six more chairs be purchased, and new rubber tips for all the chairs.

Moved by Mrs. Rex Rollins, and seconded by Mrs. Leonard Graham, we purchase two dozen new cups.

Moved by Mrs. Arthur Parks, and seconded by Mrs. W. Rollins, we get wall board to fix the scenery in the hall.

Moved by Mrs. Al Bird, and seconded by Mrs. Christie Bailey, we bring a cash donation to the December meeting to be sent to (Care), instead of our Christmas exchange.

It was announced the next card party be held at Mrs. D. Chapman's.

The report on the Area Convention, at Belleville, was given by Mrs. Leonard Graham.

Mrs. Hark Rollins read the topic, "The woman, who is active in the community, is happier than the one who is not."

Mrs. Al Bird gave a reading, "Family Treasure in the Old Clock", also another reading, "The Hairdo", by Mrs. D. Chapman.

Current Events were given by Mrs. Harry Whiteman, which also consisted of a discussion on radio and T.V. programs.

Mrs. Lynn McCoy conducted a contest, "Name of a Girl". Mrs. Allan McCoy thanked the hostess for her home. The meeting closed with "God Save The Queen", and lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

TRINITY W.M.S.

Mrs. R. C. Jackson was the hostess to the members of the Women's Missionary Society, with an attendance of 17 members.

Mrs. Albert Empey took charge of the meeting, in the absence of the President, Mrs. D. Carman.

Mrs. Lane was pianist for the meeting. Mrs. Empey offered prayer for the Missionary. Mrs. L. Bennett read a letter from Miss Milliecent Howse, telling of her work in Africa, and thanking the members of our Society for the gifts sent to her, to be used as she would see fit.

An account of the Presbytery supper was given by Mrs. Empey, the proceeds to be used for the expense account of the Society.

The slate of Officers was brought in by the nominating committee, the installation to be at a later date.

Miss A. Holmes, supply secretary, reminded of the bales and the need for good used clothing. Each member is to bring an article for the towel kit to the Christmas meeting, instead of the usual exchange of gifts. Mrs. Empey reminded the members that the December meeting would be a joint meeting with the W.A., and would be held at Mrs. Lane's.

The Worship Service was taken by Mrs. Lane, who began her service with a Remembrance Day thought, and reading a poem on "Remembrance". Mrs. Geo. Devolin also gave a reading on "Remembrance".

The program was taken by Mrs. E. Moore, who was assisted by Mrs. Jackson, and Mrs. McCoy, who gave readings on Remembrance Day. Owing to the lateness, the study book was left for a further meeting.

A social hour followed.

WEDDING

TAYLOR-WHITEMAN

Trinity United Church Parsonage, Madoc, on Saturday, November 13, was the scene of a quiet, but pretty wedding, when Rev. J. F. Lane united in marriage Marion Marguerite Whiteman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Whiteman, of Cooper, to Edward Laverne Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Taylor, of Madoc.

The bride was gowned in blue nylon lace bodice with nylon net over satin skirt, nylon coronet with shoulder length veil, and she carried a bouquet of pink and white mums.

The bridesmaid was Mrs. Verna Watson, of Nestleton, sister of the bride, wearing a gown with mauve satin bodice with nylon net over satin skirt. Her coronet was of mauve flowers, and she carried a bouquet of yellow and white mums.

The groomsmen was Mr. Victor Savage, of Toronto, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

A buffet lunch was served at the home of the bride's parents by Miss Wilma Whiteman, cousin of the bride, and Miss Phillis Trotter, a friend of the bride.

The bride's mother received, wearing a royal blue crepe dress, with a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, wearing blue and white checked taffeta, and a corsage of red roses.

For a motor trip to Watertown, New York, the bride chose a navy suit of rayon and orlon.

Upon their return, they will reside in Madoc.

BANCROFT AREA RICH IN URANIUM ORE SAYS PAPER

The Globe and Mail says the richest uranium ore ever found in quantity in Ontario has been uncovered by Faraday Uranium Mines in the Bancroft area.

The story by the Globe and Mail mining editor, James Scott, says the full importance of the discovery has yet to be determined, "but it has implications that could lead to a brand new perspective for a mining district that has always been looked upon with skepticism."

The paper says little attention was paid to the uranium possibilities of the area until recently, despite the fact the presence of radioactive minerals had been acknowledged for years.

The paper says the discovery was made by Faraday in the course of underground development to investigate "large tonnage indicated by surface diamond drilling earlier this year."

"So far it has been exposed for a length of 50 feet and a width of seven feet, but it continues into the walls of the drift at both ends of the exposed length. First muck samples assayed $421.95 per ton in uranium oxide based on a chemical analysis."

The story quotes Ashton W. Johnston, vice-president of Faraday, as saying his engineers estimate there now is in sight more than $500,000 worth of uranium ore in the length so far indicated.

The story adds: "There is still no assurance that the deposit will develop into the hoped-for dimensions, but the fact that diamond drilling about 600 feet ahead of the point where the high-grade ore was encountered indicated a similar parallel structure, leads the company's engineers to hope that the new occurrence is not just an isolated pocket."

Mines Minister Kelly, of Ontario, said samples of the Faraday mine are being assayed by department geologists and results will be known shortly.

He said that if the uranium strike at Bancroft continues in length and maintains an assay of three per cent or better, "then this will be a discovery of the first magnitude."

"This could turn out to be a discovery of great importance," he said. "The Faraday company is a reliable one and their engineering and geological consultants are outstanding. If they feel that this is a major uranium discovery, no doubt they have good grounds for this belief, though undoubtedly much work remains to be done."

Quick glances at the tuberculosis death rates in Canada over the last few years have led a good many to believe that TB, most dreaded diseases at the beginning of the century, is on its way out. The trouble is that quick glances are not all-inclusive. They don't give us the whole story.

that there are still 11,000 new cases entering our sanatoria yearly. That hardly looks as if "the white plague" had been routed. Actually, what the combination of falling death rates and maintained case rates means is that treatment has forged ahead faster than prevention. That should bring us short, for while treatment is in the hands of medical men and scientists, prevention is our responsibility. We all have a part to play, forced on us by the nature of communicable diseases. Where germs are concerned, cure is not enough. The spread of infection has to be stopped and this is a slow business, demanding sustained effort. In the case of tuberculosis, which often takes months or years to develop, the effort has to be even more tenacious than for most diseases.

A reminder that we still have this job of prevention on our hands comes each year in the mail, the Christmas Seals, new in design save for the double-barred cross, emblem of the fight against tuberculosis. The Seals themselves are gay, but the letter accompanying them tells some sobering facts. Not that it is a discouraged or discouraging letter! Far from it. It is just the letter of people, who have attacked a big job on behalf of the community, and need some help from those who are going to benefit, you and me. When you have read the letter, you will know why you should buy Christmas Seals to help prevent tuberculosis.

GERMAN IMMIGRANT TO RECEIVE CANADIAN HUMANE SOCIETY MEDAL

A 42-year-old German immigrant, who during the war years, saved a British Spitfire pilot from a fiery death, is to receive recognition from the Royal Canadian Humane Society for saving the life of a truck driver, who was pulled from his blazing cab last March 14th.

Hugo Neumeyer, Madoc Talc millworker, is to receive the Royal Humane Society medal and parchment for saving the life of E. Fred White, of Tweed, who was pulled from the burning cab of his truck after it crashed into a tree on Highway 7, east of Madoc and caught fire.

Neumeyer ran from a nearby farmhouse in his pyjamas and pulled White to safety. The man's leg and arm had already been burned by the flames.

White was engaged in hauling acid from Deloro to Sulphide with a tank truck and trailer when his front tire blew throwing the truck out of control. The vehicle slammed into a tree, caught fire and exploded the acid in the tank on the trailer. Neumeyer braved the flames and hauled White from the blazing cab just before the explosion.

During the war Neumeyer saved a British pilot from death after his Spitfire crashed during a raid over Germany. He pulled the pilot from the plane which caught fire as it crashed.

FEDERATION OF AGRICULTURE ELECTS OFFICERS

The Madoc Township Federation of Agriculture held its first banquet recently in Eldorado United Church, which was filled to capacity.

Mr. Philo Harris, President, welcomed all those present. Mr. Roscoe Robson, M.L.A.; Warden Fred Mitchell; Reeve Earle Sager; Mr. Earle Whiteman, County President; Mr. Harold Varty, Past President; Mr. A. O. Dalrymple and Allan Ketcheson spoke briefly.

Mr. George White, M.P., gave a short account of his trip to Europe and compared the eating habits of Canadians to the Europeans and Asians.

It was the Federation of Agriculture which conducted the canvass for the Canadian Institute for the Blind two years ago, and Mr. Kelvin Kincaid gave an interesting account for the new centre established in Kingston.

The High School quartette, composed of Clifford Derry, James Howse, Bill Wagar, and Bill Walker, with Miss Lamorne West as pianist, rendered some enjoyable selections. Mr. William Aylesworth favored the audience with two solos, "The Vagabond", and "On The Road To Mandalay".

Mr. A. O. Dalrymple introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Ralph Banbury, B.S.A., who had just received an award for 25 years of service to the Department of Agriculture. He thought Eldorado was associated with gold fields and uranium deposits. He compared living conditions of Canadian ancestors and their problems to present day conditions; how markets have changed; how world conditions affected Canada and how efficiently it has met the challenge. Canada has always been a food surplus country and the wealth of the nation has moved from a few extremely wealthy to the average common people.

Mr. Dalrymple complimented Madoc Township Federation of Agriculture on its success in the past, as it was the first township in the county to make the Brucellosis Control Act compulsory in the township. They were also responsible for sponsoring the night school being held in Madoc at present, which is being attended by over 200 people.

Madoc Creamery donated a door prize of six pounds of butter, which was won by Mrs. Christie Bailey. An aluminum shovel, donated by Madoc Co-operative, was won by Mrs. M. Reynolds.

Mr. Arnold Empey moved a vote of thanks to the speakers and to the ladies of Eldorado and Banockburn Women's Institute for the bounteous turkey banquet. Mrs. Ken Bateman, President, responded.

The annual meeting and election of Officers for next year was held. Officers elected for 1955: President, Philo Harris; Vice-president, Allan Ketcheson; Secretary-treasurer, Wilfred Forestell; Directors, Clayton Blackburn; Arthur Parks; Max Burnside; Bruce Robinson; Arnold Empey; Bert Hagerman; Edward Robinson; Stanley Moorcroft; Jas. Keene; Jack Bailey; Fred Cassidy; Allen Thompson; Earle Sager; Allen Sager; Roy Moorcroft and Francis Tobin.

FORMER MADOCER DIED IN VANCOUVER

Mr. E. T. Givins, a former resident of Madoc Village, died suddenly of a heart attack on Monday night, November 29th, at his home in Vancouver. The late Mr. Givins, who was in his 71st year, was well known in Madoc several years ago, when he was employed in the Dale Bank.

The funeral service was held on December 3rd, from the Simons and McBride Funeral Home, where an impressive service was attended by a number of former Madocers and members of his church.

Carl Huff, a nephew, and a resident of this district, on receipt of word of Mr. Givins' death, flew to Vancouver and was present at the funeral.

TWO BELLEVILLE WOMEN KILLED IN CRASH

Two Belleville young women were instantly killed and a third injured Saturday night when their car slammed into the rear of a parked transport trailer near Westbrook, four miles west of Kingston.

Killed were Miss Iva Agnes Empey, 24, of 46 Harriett Street, and Miss Gisèle Harrison, 32, of 11 Albion Street. Miss Pearl Empey, 35, sister of one of the dead girls, is in Kingston General Hospital, suffering from shock, a broken ankle and cuts.

The accident took place shortly after nine o'clock Saturday night as the three young women were on their way to Kingston to attend a dance.

The vehicle was folded like an accordion as it crashed into the rear of the disabled transport which was parked partly off the road. Driver of the transport, Donald Lazier, 28, of Toronto, had pulled off the road with a broken drive shaft. His warning flares were in place, when the car rammed into the trailer from behind.

The blinding glare of approaching headlights is believed to have been partially responsible for the accident. Miss Pearl Empey, driver of the car, is reported to have told police that she saw the flares set out on the highway, but failed to see the parked transport because of the approaching bright lights.

It was an hour after Pearl Empey had been taken to hospital that police were able to extricate the bodies of the other two women from the wrecked car.

"The girls left home about eight o'clock Saturday night to attend a dance at Kingston. They were as happy as larks when they left," stated Mrs. Harry Gawley, sister of the Empey girls.

"Pearl was a very careful driver and would have been the last person to take a chance," she said.

Both of the dead girls were assemblers at the Northern Electric plant at Belleville. Miss Harrison, a native of Sudbury, had been living in Belleville for the past eight years and was a close friend of the Empey sisters. Pearl Empey is an employee of the Stewart-Warner plant.

A brother of the Empey girls, Arthur Empey, of Belleville, was critically injured in a duck hunting accident earlier this fall.

The body of Miss Harrison was shipped directly from Kingston to her parents' home in Sudbury.

Iva Empey was born in Belleville and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Empey, at 46 Harriett Street. She had lived in Belleville all her life. She had attended Queen Victoria School and was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

She is survived by her parents, four sisters, Mrs. Harry (Eva) Gawley, of Eldorado; Mrs. Clifford (Lila) Nelson, Mrs. Harold (June) Huffman, and Miss Pearl Empey, all of Belleville, and three brothers, Lindsay, of Madoc; Arthur, of Belleville, and Ross, of Corbyville.

PROFESSIONAL MEETING

On Thursday, November 25th, all teachers of Grades 7, 8, 9, and 10 of Madoc District, held a meeting in the Madoc High School. Eighteen teachers were present. Mr. G. W. Nelson, Inspector of Elementary Schools, and Mr. A. L. Lakie, Inspector of Secondary Schools, were also present.

Dr. G. R. Anderson, of Madoc Public School, acted as Chairman, while R. A. Fleming, of Madoc High School, acted as Secretary.

The meeting came to order at 8 o'clock with Dr. Anderson welcoming the new teachers and adding a special welcome for Mr. Nelson and Mr. Lakie. After each teacher introduced themselves to the rest of the group, as to name and school where teaching, Dr. Anderson gave a general outline of the meeting.

He outlined the work of the Planning Committee, who was on this Committee, and the work and plans they had made for the meeting. He also outlined the three topics for discussion for the evening.

Mr. Lakie then addressed the group before they broke up into discussion groups. He stated that the Teaching Profession should act as a profession, in that it should have control over itself and the work that it does. It should not be content to just carry out orders laid down by the Department, as this would put the members in the positions of clerks. With this in mind, we, as members of this Profession, should set goals and not forget these main goals in dealing with the details. We can promise children two things in life: that they will be living in a new and different world and that they will be under more stress and strain than ever before. How then are we going to arrange the curriculum to make pupils thinkers, to meet these new situations.

The members present were then divided into three groups; the first under the chairmanship of Miss Lamorne West, the second under Mr. C. A. Howse, and the third under Mrs. Elaine LeSage.

At 10 o'clock the members reconvened and the reporters gave reports from each group. Mrs. O'Riordan gave the report from group one on "Basic Factors in determining the goals of education, which contribute to the realization of fundamental needs of Human Life". Mrs. Hilda Bray gave the report from group two on "Practices in Connection with the curriculum (with particular attention to Grades VIII to X inclusive)".

Ross Fleming gave the report from group three on "The Philosophy of the Intermediate School Curriculum".

It was suggested that the Planning Committee should remain the same and that the next meeting should be held on the fourth Thursday in January or the first in February. It was also suggested that Committee try to obtain a speaker for a meeting. The next meeting was to be an afternoon meeting and there would be no fees charged for postage, etc. Since there was no further business, Dr. Anderson adjourned the meeting and a social hour was spent over a delicious lunch, provided by the Rural Teachers.

AUTHORITY REPORTS 34,150 TREES PLANTED IN PAST YEAR

A total of 34,150 trees was planted on properties of the Moira Conservation Authority during the past year, the Authority learned at its final meeting for 1954, held recently.

The report, presented by W. E. Edwards, zone forester, Department Lands and Forests, Napanee, also looked forward to the planting in 1955 of 100,000 more trees.

The Authority is looking for land anywhere in the watershed of the Moira suitable for reforestation. However, it was brought out at the meeting, that while it continues its own program, the Authority is more interested in reforestation by private individuals. A survey in 1950 of the watershed showed an estimated 97,000 acres of land suitable for reforestation. The program of the Authority provides for subsidizing of reforestation efforts by private individuals.

Regarding the soil and water conservation role of the Authority, it was reported that during the year seven plans were drawn up by the Soil Advisory Service of the Ontario College, Guelph, and presented to seven farmers in the watershed. The move was the first of its kind in this area and officials see it as a sign of the "increasing recognition of the need for conservation farming in this area."

The field officer's report, presented by Mr. Don Bell, noted that there is a "definite need" for a stream improvement program within the watershed. "Our trout creeks are presently only yielding a fraction of their potential," he commented.

Mr. Bell's report also took note of the reforestation results of the past year and went on to say: "We have more lands available for reforestation than we can afford to buy on our present budget."

"It seems that the reforestation of private lands can only be increased through our pointing out the values to be derived in dollars and cents from the reforestation of idle land."

The O'Hara Mill, at Madoc, will shortly be established as a historic site, Mr. Bell indicated. With sufficient finances by spring it is "quite conceivable," the Authority could begin reconstruction this summer, he stated.

HAZZARD'S W.M.S.

The December meeting of Hazzard's Women's Missionary Society was held in the church on Thursday afternoon with all the members present, three visitors and two children.

The President, Mrs. Burnside, opened the meeting, using a poem as a prayer, and also presided for the business period.

Mrs. Philo Harris had charge of the Worship Service, using Hymn, "O Little Town of Bethlehem." Scripture lesson, taken from the 2nd Chapter of Luke, was read in unison.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis sang as a duet, "Silent Night," after which Mrs. Blair offered prayer, which closed the Worship period.

Mrs. S. Moorcroft presided for the program, which was relating to Christmas.

Mrs. Michael, of Oshawa, gave a story, "Let's Keep Christmas," written by Peter Marshall. Christmas Carols were sung, and Christmas messages were given by several members. Hymn, "Hark The Herald Angels Sing," was sung and Mr. Lewis closed with a short talk, and deep earnest prayer.

WOLF PACKS KILLING DEER

Killer wolf packs are devouring deer in Westemkoon Lake area of Frontenac township, 65 miles north-east of Belleville.

The picked bones of a 250-pound buck and a 200-pound doe were found by a party of hunters headed by Fred Rawson, of Belleville, and Dit Clapper, of Peterboro. Blood splattered trampled undergrowth was evidence of terrific struggles.

Timely intervention of a hunter saved the life of his female hound, which was chased by a huge timber wolf in the same vicinity. The deer, the hunters said, are staying close to water, apparently in fear of attacks by the grey killers.

The party of 13 hunters shot only three deer during its four-day stay.

Canada in 1953 suffered the loss of 1,300,000 man-days of work through strikes. Equivalent to a big factory paying 5,000 workers and turning out goods for consumers all year long.

WEDDINGS

NELSON-LOVE

Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, November 27, at 12:30 p.m., for a pretty wedding, when Helen Isabel Love, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan C. Love, became the bride of Ralph Leroy Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Nelson. The Rev. R. A. Rowley, pastor of the church, officiated before a background of bronze, white, and yellow chrysanthemums in tall white standards interspersed with ferns.

Mrs. M. P. Duff, organist, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. C. Tanner, of Madoc.

The bride, who was given a marriage by her father, was radiant in her bridal gown of Chantilly lace and net over satin in cocktail length, fashioned in tiered effect of lace and net. She wore a matching seed pearl headdress and shoulder length veil, and carried a shower bouquet of Bettertime roses and stevia with streamers of white, feathered edge, satin ribbon, knotted with roses.

Mrs. C. Coulson, of Rossmore, was matron of honor.

Mr. Gerald Nelson, of Toronto, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. George Dempsey, of Toronto, and Mr. William Old, of Belleville, were ushers.

The wedding reception was held in the church parlors, where the bride's mother received, assisted by the bridegroom's mother.

For travelling to the United States, the bride wore a powder blue ensemble with matching top coat, and black accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson will reside in Toronto.

Guests were present from Toronto, Stratford, Madoc, Queensboro and Foxboro.

PLANNING LARGER LANDS AND FORESTS CAMPING SITES

Departmental Officials are now planning increases in both numbers and size of public camp sites in order to meet public demand.

These sites are scattered throughout the district of Tweed and in many cases serve to provide recreational facilities as well as access to lakes.

Wherever a road meets a lake-shore, there is an invitation for a traveller to pause awhile and enjoy the outdoors and at that point he requires certain minimum facilities. The improved campsite supplies, these tools for use and the public has found them acceptable.

Improved or partly improved campsites may be found in the Bancroft area at Diamond Lake, Lake St. Peter and Papineau, and in the Cloyne area at Marble Lake and Loon Lake.

The well operated campsite attracts tourists from Canada and the United States, many of whom would not ordinarily stop in this area. It is expected that when further development takes place that the location of campsites will result in well established travel

RAILWAY ONLY 35 MILES LONG

In the heart of central Ontario an almost unknown little railway is making a new bid for popularity.

The Irondale, Bancroft and Ottawa Railway, the I. B. and O., is only 35 miles long but makes up in unique operation for what it lacks in length.

From Bancroft, 50 miles north of Madoc, the rails stretch due west to Howland, skirting some of the province's most scenic country. Three times a week a diminutive Canadian National Railway locomotive lugs five or six cars out of Bancroft on the four-and-a-half-hour trip to Howland.

Now part of the C.N.R. system, the railroad was little more than a dream 65 years ago. In 1886, prospector Charles M. Pusey built the first four miles of track to haul ore from his mine to Howland.

A few years later Pusey secured a charter to extend the rails to Ottawa. Unfortunately his dream and his money expired together, 125 miles short of the capital.

Today the I. B. and O. doesn't operate any faster than it did then. Sharp curves and steep grades make high speeds impossible and the C.N.R.'s book of regulations warns engineers not to exceed 20 miles an hour.

Service goes on in spite of the three-day-a-week schedule rather than because of it. C.N.R. timetable 155 puts the time of departure, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 8.30 a.m.

But a Bancroft oldtimer who worked on the construction of the railway says he can't remember when a train ever left on time.

Operating without benefit of stationmasters at the 12 intermediate stops listed on the timetable, the I.

B. and O. carries - the only travelling train agent on the C.N.R. Riding a spacious express car he has to keep tab on milk cans, potatoes, mail-order parcels, pig starter and lumber.

Tourists now enter the area in droves every summer. Fishermen take the train, and the obliging crew will drop the angler at his favorite spot and pick him up again on the return trip late in the afternoon.

MEETING HELD

A Provincial Forest Protection Conference was held recently at North Bay, which was attended by Mr. M. Wilson, Forest Protection Supervisor in the Tweed District. This meeting, on a Province wide basis, of the people who are directly concerned with Forest Fire Protection, brought up many interesting subjects for discussion, which should prove of real value to the Department in future Forest Fire control planning.

We bring you -
THE 1955 BUICK
New thriller in Style-
Power-Performance

A BRIGHT NEW FRESHNESS greets your eyes and tells you: Buick's done it again.

You see it in the bold distinction of that gleaming Wide-Screen Grille. You see it in the rakish sweep of the rear-end contours. You see it in the whole fore-and-aft newness of sleek-lined grace that marks Buick the beauty thrill of 1955.

New horsepower—up to 236

You learn more when you get the power story. Up to new peaks go the horsepower of every Buick V8 engine—a wallowing 188 h.p. in the low-price SPECIAL—a mighty 236 h.p. in the CENTURY, SUPER and ROADMASTER.

And it's new, more responsive, far abler power you can literally feel as you go.

But even bigger Buick news for 1955 is something more than style and power. It's what the "variable pitch propeller" now had done for Dynaflo Drive.

Up goes performance—and gas mileage too

When you find it necessary to push the pedal to the floor board, you do more than call on the greatest high-compression V8 power in Buick history.

You do what a pilot does when he heads his plane down a runway.

You do in oil what he does in air—you cut down take-off time by using "variable pitch propellers."

In this case, the propeller blades are inside the Dynaflo unit. But they're engineered to swivel or change their "pitch" just like plane propellers—and with the same result: one pitch for get-away, another pitch for gas-saving fuel efficiency. And what you get in the way of instantaneous safety-surge with absolute smoothness, you can only believe when you feel it.

This you have to try

Of course, we want you to come and see the trend-setting new Buicks—look into the betterments in gasoline mileage that add new thrills to these spectacular cars.

But this year, "seeing" is only the beginning. So—join the crowds viewing the new Buicks, and make a date to get behind the wheel as soon as we can have a demonstrator available. We promise you the thrill of the year.

ANNE HIRST Your Family Counselor

"Dear Anne Hirst: I'd like to express my indignation toward a man who insists his fiancée continue working after they marry, to help pay for their home. Any husband can suggest his wife help save for that, but to say she MUST—well, he's a cheapskate, that's what he is."

"A man marries the girl he loves to give her a home and take care of her; as you say, he should be proud to support her, not insist on taking money from her. It's all right for her to pay for some of her clothes, yes, but he should certainly provide her with seasonal outfits as she needs them."

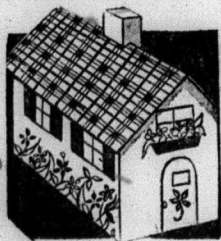

"Wives Shouldn't Work!"

"My husband doesn't think any wife should work. He says a home isn't a home unless it is beautiful and clean all the time; then if unexpected friends drop in, you don't have to excuse the dust. You know as well as I do, Anne Hirst, you cannot keep your house looking as it should and have those home-made pies and cakes men love, if you're out working all day!"

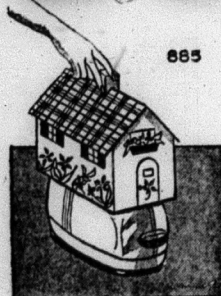

"A Friendly Reader"

Many a reader, man and woman, will agree with you. Most men take pride in supporting a wife, and many I've met feel that a working wife is a reflection on her husband's capabilities. They can both do without some luxuries and manage to get along on his income. A man's pride is precious to him, and it should not be offended.

Another important angle, however, is the fact that a career girl, or one who has been successful in business for a long time, is not always content to settle down as a homemaker. She has too many profitable talents that will fallow, and she would be restless and bored with only household routine. That is why some wives of well-to-do men prefer to continue in business and share domestic help to run their homes competently.

In many cases today the couple could not possibly live on the man's income alone. The girl is as anxious for marriage as the man, and she is glad and proud to pay her share of their common expenses.

I agree with your point that it is the man's attitude that is vital. He may ask if she prefers to go on working; but to demand that she work to help pay for the house and its upkeep, and buy her own clothes besides, is a very different interpretation of the marriage partnership.

Each couple must settle the matter between them. I should add, however, that any girl contemplating marriage should have some profitable talent to fall back on, in case of emergencies.

If your husband disapproves of your holding a position, cut your budget to fit his income—and do it cheerfully. . . . Anne Hirst is glad to discuss practical economic problems as well as emotional difficulties. Write her about either at Box 1, 123 Eighteenth St., New Toronto, Ontario.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM by Gwendoline P. Clarke

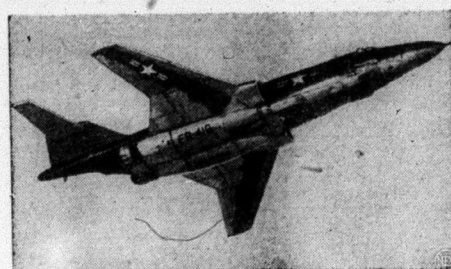

Unless a miracle happens in the way of a long open fall, it looks as if quite a lot of fall ploughing will be left unfinished this year—as a result of Hurricane Hazel. In driving through this district and in the neighbouring county of Peel we have seen many fields where ploughing has been started and then left, with water lying in the furrows. In some fields tractors are stuck, axle-deep in mud. On our farm there is one field where John wants to put in spring crop again next year. So of course it must be ploughed this fall. Last Monday he came along with his own big tractor and double-furrow plough. He had hardly started before he found it was impossible to make any headway so he discarded his big tractor for our own which is much smaller and lighter. But even it could not navigate in the water-logged field. In disgust Johnny quit early and went home. We thought that was the last we would see of him for a few days. But no, Johnny isn't discouraged that easy. The next morning he showed up with a team of horses and a single furrow plough which he used all the week until Saturday. That morning there was quite a bit of frost in the ground so out came the tractor. By the afternoon the frost had thawed out and the team was put to work again. So it looks as if the horses come into their own once in awhile anyway.

However, although the fields were wet underfoot it was certainly lovely overhead—real Indian summer. One more

FASHION RINGS THE BELLE—Whether it's in the Congo or for the Congo, rings make fashion news this year. chance to get unfinished jobs cleaned up. I was glad of the nice weather as I was convenor for our W.I. meeting last Thursday and it was just one of those occasions when nothing seemed to go right. We were expecting a speaker from Galt. Two days before the meeting I did not know whether she was coming or not. You can imagine how happy I was feeling! So I phoned her and discovered she was to let me know if she could NOT come. That I had forgotten. There was also lunch to arrange for the meeting but by the time I was ready to phone the rest of the committee the telephone was out of order! I eventually got that straightened out and then I set to work to fix up a contest—and almost forgot the prize. Then came the day of the meeting. Our speaker was to arrive on the 1:45 train. That was fine—just right for our two o'clock meeting. I got to the station and was informed the train would be twenty-five minutes late! No telephones at the station—I often wonder why—so I went to the nearest house and phoned our president from there. At 2:30 we arrived. After the meeting I brought our speaker home for a snack-supper and then took her to catch the 6:30 train for home. Got into the car, heard something rattling like fury behind me. The tail-pipe and the muffler had parted company, the former missing the ground by about four inches! Our roll-call for that meeting was "How to postpone old age." Had I been there to answer it I think I would have said—"Avoid being convenor for any special meeting!"

However, looking back I realize it was all worthwhile for it was a great privilege and pleasure to hear Mrs. R. D. Hendry, our Area representative on the Provincial Board. We got some very good advice on W.I. work and were given a first-hand account of what Hurricane Hazel did at the International Ploughing Match, particularly to the W.I. tent, which of course was collapsed by the storm. How the ladies ever came through the ordeal I can't imagine. And then Mrs. Hendry gave us a delightful account of her trip over to England, Scotland, Denmark, Sweden and Holland. She spoke particularly of the wonderful care given Canadian graves by the Dutch people. "If you have anyone buried over there," said Mrs. Hendry, "then thank God he is in a Dutch cemetery for his grave will never be neglected but be given tender and loving care. The people of Holland will never forget the Canadian boys who died in defence of their country."

Well, to complete the week, Bob and Joy were here Friday night. Saturday night Daughter phoned—she and Art had taken Dave to see the Santa Claus Parade! They really thought he was too young but decided to see what he would make of it anyway. Apparently he didn't miss a trick. Perched on Daddy's shoulder the whole time, his eyes never left the passing scene. He is one up on his grandparents at that, as neither of us has ever seen the Santa Claus Parade. . . . and how I would like to! I often think that the Parade, like so many books and shows arranged for children, actually gives more pleasures to grown-ups than to the children themselves.

Odds and Ends Of Salesmanship

There is no profession, or trade in the world that offers more scope for ingenuity than that of the salesman. There is the classic example of a salesman who bought up a whole consignment—about 20,000 tins—of jam.

There was only one snag: none of the tins had a label. They had been salvaged from a shipwreck and no dealer would buy them.

So the salesman went to several leading bakeries as soon as he had the consignment safely in his possession. "You make jam tarts don't you?" he asked.

On being assured that the bakeries made many thousands of jam tarts, the salesman said: "It makes no difference to you, I suppose, whether you make apple tarts one day or apricots or whatever you have on hand?"

This was indeed the case, he shaw boys. For years afterwards Natal, South Africa, and various Chinese cities resounded to the furious honk-honk of the redundant car horns.

A salesman was instructed to sell tomato sauce to the Far East when the British and American markets had a terrible glut of tomatoes.

He went from place to place assuring people that this was the real "he-man's" drink in the Western World. He received his biggest free advertisement when, at a banquet in Mongolia, the ruling class rose, each with a bottle of tomato sauce in hand, and solemnly chanted the king's health and then took a swig.

Everyone was keen on tomato sauce after that!

In the sleepy hills of North Georgia, gold is waiting to be mined. And there's nothing to stop any man going there and keeping all he finds. But he won't be alone.

For not so sleepy, are the publicity boys of old Georgia who want to pep up the tourist trade. Their "finders keepers" campaign has lured tourists from as many as fifteen different States in a single week-end. They pay about a dollar or so per head, and the mine owners of Dahlonega—the North Georgia community known as "The Gold City"—take them out to the mines and show them how to pan for ore.

Dahlonega, the site of the first gold rush ever in the United States, some twenty years before the big strike in California, gets its name from the Cherokee Indian word "Tau-lan-ka," meaning "Yellow Money."

Hardly any tourist goes away without finding some gold. One man, not long ago, filled a quart jar with about $7,500 worth of ore. But for the majority of visitors to-day, the prize is unlikely to exceed a little dust, although occasionally nuggets are found worth as much as $150. So the hopeful tourists do not begrudge the small sums they pay in "digging fees."

What puzzles some visitors is why the mine owners operate only on a very small scale. If there is so much gold lying about, they reason, why don't they dig more earnestly and keep it all for themselves? The high cost of labour and machinery, the owners say, prohibits full-scale operations. The actual value of the gold found would not balance the expense of getting to it.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

● That Grey Cup battle of last week may be the last of the classics to be played in Toronto — unless, of course, Toronto Argonauts are rebuilt into Eastern champions, and win the right to meet the West.

It's a couple of years since this column raised its voice in favour of eight other cities getting a first-hand "live" peek at the Grey Cup battling. Nothing happened, although the feeling for a more equitable division of the colourful spectacle is still growing. Montreal Alouettes, for instance, have come out flat-footed for a home-and-home series. Before now, the team representing Canada's biggest city was scarcely in a position to push its Grey Cup claims, for the park in which it was playing, built for baseball, had neither the proper yardage, nor properly arranged seats.

But this year the Alouettes moved to the massive McGill bowl, a perfect football stadium with a comfortable seating capacity of 25,000. They are now expressing the sentiments originally voiced in this column, namely, that the two cities creating the clubs which clash in the final are entitled to a Grey Cup game each.

Toronto, in proportion to its population perhaps the most sporting on the continent, has had a monopoly on the Grey Cup these many years. This great pigskin event draws thousands of football followers to that city. Montreal, and undoubtedly every other city that boasts a major football team — five in the West and three others in the East — is drooping at the economic delights of such a sports invasion.

There will be talk, of course, that such a gathering holds great advertising value for the city concerned. Don't let that fool you. Every city concerned is thinking in highly practical terms of the economic windfall accompanying the Grey Cup game, which could run into half a million dollars or so.

Quite apart from this, we believe the West is entitled to a portion of the spectacle; that the city which made the Western champions possible by paying a the box-office to support it, should have a glimpse at the finals. And the same for the Eastern cities, now fretting a little because Toronto, whose Argonauts didn't make the Eastern playoffs again, gets the big plum, sporting and economic.

Your comments and suggestions for this column will be welcomed by Elmer Ferguson, c/o Calvert House, 431 Yonge St., Toronto.

Diamond Smugglers And Their Tricks

Diamond smugglers in West Africa may soon find themselves in queer street. For they must pit their wits to-day against one of the world's shrewdest crook catchers, Sir Percy Sillitoe, former head of M.I.5, who has been called in to investigate reports of an international diamond smuggling ring.

The Mwadui mine, lying in the Shinyanga district of Western Tanganyika, was first opened up by a Canadian geologist in parcels of diamonds with, to legal output of $6,000,000 worth of diamonds. No one knows the extent of the illegal haul from this neighbourhood. The police realize, however, that diamond smugglers adopt every kind of ingenuity to convey illicit stones to world markets in London, New York and Amsterdam.

Indian "merchants" are often pretty thickly involved plotters. One well-dressed Indian woman entertained lavishly until it was discovered that the folds of her sari were a virtual L.D.B. (illicit diamond buyer) "bank." Another woman sent a very precious gem by post to London buried in a book. She left the ends of the wrapping open, and trusted the postal authorities to do the rest. They did!

West Africa knows of one trafficker with a partiality for pink coloured candies. These "tasties" though are not quite what they seem. Their centres are hard—diamond hard—and by the coating material's colour pattern, varied according to a pre-arranged code, the receiver of "sweets" from this gentleman knows precisely which he must operate on and which he can give his children.

At Bloemhof, a few years ago, one man seemed to be picking up everything on his own 45-foot-square claim. While others grunted and cursed, he turned in 1940. Last year it yielded a their minds, sickening regularity.

But analysis of his stones beside other gems from the same alluvial deposits showed clearly that they were not Bloemhof diamonds. All bore a vivid resemblance to stones being marketed in South West Africa.

One day the police raided this digger's headquarters. Their painstaking search yielded nothing, until a detective sat down for a smoke on a derelict old mattress and felt something hard digging into him. Out he pulled a bag of I.D.B. diamonds, just such stones as the wily trickster was "planting" on his claim. As a result the racketeer was himself planted in jail, fined heavily in addition and all his gems about $30,000 worth, returned to the syndicate from which his agents had smuggled them.

An unrivalled range of smuggling tricks have been attempted since, in 1866, a child picked up a diamond at Hopetown and started an industry which has yielded South Africa over a billion dollars in honest money to date.

For a time one I.D.B. specialist employed runners in a Transvaal field. Whenever searched, these men produced only a few pennies and a blackened old pipe as their personal possessions. The police passed them by. Then one native, disgruntled because he felt his employer was swindling him, gave the game away. "Look at dem pipes, baba, dem have funny insides" was his tip to the police. And sure enough, each pipe had a built in cavity in which the smoker could secrete a real star of Africa!

Some rascals often tried—and try it still—to use dogs as their dumb and innocent accessories. For sticking their ill-gotten diamonds into the jaws of raw meat, they found no trouble in tempting half-starved dogs to snap up such lures. Then, when the dogs ran outside the compound, the thief or his confederates shot them dead and retrieved the precious stones.

There is a story that the missing half of the world-famous Cullinan diamond disappeared on the black market, perhaps in a thousand shimmering pieces. The Cullinan itself, spotted by Frederick Willis, surface manager of the mine, on June 25th, 1905, weighed 3,023 carats in the rough. Sent to Amsterdam, it was cut into nine large and about 100 small stones.

Legend says that although volcanic pressure separated the other half from it, a native actually picked up this half and spirited it away. True or not, according to one magistrate's testimony, a deal for it was once struck at an isolated kopje between Pretoria and the Premier Mine.

The native purloiner met there a notorious trafficker who had promised him $5,000 in gold for his prize. The trafficker, however, went back on his bargain and tried to fob him off with promises of $500 instalments. The native, it is said, eyed him sharply, sensed treachery in his eyes, and then flashed away with a black mamba's speed, dodging and twisting as revolver bullets whistled after him. He was not hit, nor was his prize ever recovered.

The big-shots in the diamond smuggling world rarely toll themselves in the alluvial fields. Labourers in the fabulous Kimberlite, the so-called blue diamondiferous soil, are simply their pawns, wretchedly underpaid, even for clever tricks, in contrast with their rake-offs. A native received a bicycle as pay-off for a packet of diamonds he'd stolen from his employers. The agent who paid him cleared about $400 on the deal. When the packet finally reached New York, the "firm" handling it disposed of its contents at the dollar equivalent of $100,000.

Nowadays, at all important diamond mines, smuggling risks are ingeniously reduced. The police use X-rays to screen boys coming in and out of the wired-in, heavily guarded compounds. This defeats swallowing, a favourite trick formerly. Several years ago, a boy went to his employers and complained of stomach-ache. An operation brought forth six diamonds in all, weighing thirty carats.

Vigilance must, of course, be unrelenting. No sooner are smugglers stopped at one centre than they tend to regroup elsewhere. But Sir Percy Sillitoe will, we hope, instigate measures not merely to deter or disperse Africa's diamond gangsters, but to land them neatly, one and all, into police custody.

All right, so you may be arguing with a fool—but watch that he isn't similarly engaged.

SWEET PICKIN'—Chosen as Orange Bowl Queen for 1955, Carolyn Stroupe is all set to carry the ball for the University of Florida. A senior at the university, she'll reign over the annual New Year's Day classic.

Brighter Colours Prevent Suicide

Dark colours are so depressing that they exaggerate suicidal tendencies in some people.

That is the view of a Bristol architect who suggested the other day that if the authorities changed the colour of the famous Clifton suspension bridge, fewer people would be tempted to commit suicide there.

"A gay, brightly-coloured bridge would prove a mental stimulant," he said, criticizing the present "sombre, dark red." He added that since the colour of Blackfriars Bridge, London, was changed to light green the number of suicides from the bridge has been reduced by one-third.

Yes, colours have an extraordinary effect upon the health and temperament of many people. Colour can cure, say some doctors. Every colour has its own peculiar power.

A London woman proposed that it's even possible to make a shy lover propose by hitting on the right colour scheme. She got an artist friend to devise a colour scheme consisting of apricot and golden walls with black as a contrast, and softly-shaded lamps.

Then, wearing her loveliest and most alluring blue evening gown, she received her shy young man in her "proposal room."

The colours won. He overcame his shyness and proposed within half an hour of entering the room. She accepted him. Last year they celebrated their golden wedding.

Colour experts say that crimson and purple always make a nervous man feel better. An active man reacts well to green, a dull man to sky blue.

Certain shades of green induce a feeling of restfulness in most people. A famous eye specialist who studied the effects of colours on the mind declared: "Green always promotes joy. Blue is a peaceful colour and makes for placid happiness. Black usually suggests sorrow, while bright red has been known to incite some men to crime and tends to induce melancholy."

E. C. TUFTS, WELL KNOWN MADOC CITIZEN, DIES

Everton C. Tufts, a former well known and highly respected citizen of Madoc, died at his home here on Friday, December 10th. Mr. Tufts, who was in his 93rd year, had been in poor health for the past two years.

The late Mr. Tufts was born in Hungerford Township, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tufts. For the past 65 years he resided in the Madoc district and conducted a furniture and undertaking business in Madoc for many years. He was also known throughout the district as an auctioneer.

He was interested in public affairs and served in the village as Reeve, Councillor, member of the Hydro Commission and School Trustee.

In religion he was an Anglican and was a member of St. John's Church and a Past Warden.

He is survived by his wife, the former Edith Whittaker; three daughters, Mrs. W. H. (Marguerite) Thompson, Ottawa; Mrs. A. B. (Marion) Yearwood, Peterborough; Mrs. J. C. (Mildred) Bird, of Madoc Township; and two sons, Garnet, of Vanscoy, Sask; and Kenneth, of Belleville.

He was predeceased by a son, Manley, of Belleville, some years ago. He is survived also by 14 grandchildren and 15 great grandchildren.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon, December 13th, at the family residence and was largely attended. Rev. W. Giovetti, rector of St. John's Anglican Church, conducted the service at the home and graveside. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

Bearers were Allan McCoy, Phil Rivers, Percy Holland, Geo. West, Fred Stewart and Tom Hawthorne. Interment was in Lakeview cemetery.

SECTION OF FOXBORO-MADOC ROAD WILL BE STARTED NEXT SPRING

Preliminary surveys, preparatory to the re-building of the initial section of the Foxboro-Madoc road as a development road project by the Ontario Department of Highways, have now been completed. Members of the Hastings County Council were told Thursday afternoon by Roads and Bridges Committee chairman, Reeve Elmer Wood, of Huntingdon Township.

Reading the roads and bridges report, Reeve Wood noted that the initial field work by a Toronto firm of surveyors had recently been completed and it is expected tenders will be called to have the actual work started by contract next spring.

Following many years of representations to the highways department to have the Madoc road taken over as a highway, last summer the department agreed to re-build the artery to highway standards as a road development program. It is understood that two-and-a-half miles south of Madoc and a small section through the village of Hall-oway will be the first to be constructed. Survey on the latter section was done by J. T. Ransom, of Belleville.

The road report also indicated that the Frankford-Foxboro road, currently being rebuilt as a development road project, has now been almost completed with the exception of about half-a-mile across the Longwell farm, two miles west of Foxboro.

This road has been rebuilt in three sections, with one section being done each year for the past three years. The work was done by county forces with the highways department paying for the actual construction.

SAFE-CRACKERS GET ONLY $10 AT TWEED MILL

Safe-crackers went to a lot of effort for what they gained when, over the weekend, they forced their way into the Hodgins' flour mill, at Tweed, and knocked the combination off the office safe. Chief of Police Matheson said only about $10 was in the safe.

The break-in took place some time between six o'clock Saturday evening, when the mill was closed, and eight o'clock Monday. The open safe was found by mill workers when they reported for work Monday.

This is the second time in the past two years that the safe in the mill has been opened. The thieves, the first time, also knocked the combination off the door to get into the safe.

THEFT OF CHRISTMAS TREES

Overcome by the thought of quick and easy profits, a resident of Maple Leaf, and a buyer from Port Colborne, recently teamed up on an illegal Christmas tree operation on Crown Land in Wicklow Township. They were apprehended in the Act by Prov. Cons. Hooker, Chief Ranger Goodman and his Deputy, Henry Taylor, all of Bancroft. Charged with theft under the Canadian Criminal Code, they were summoned before Magistrate Jackson, were found guilty and sentenced accordingly.

A word to others inclined towards a similar misdemeanour should serve as a warning. It definitely wasn't worth it financially after costs and restitution were paid and besides, why take the chance of being registered as a thief in the Court's records.

MARRIED AT NEWBURGH

Miss Barbara Jean Storrington daughter of Mrs. Alice Storrington and the late William Storrington, Newburgh, became the bride of Mr. William Allan Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Thompson, of Madoc. The wedding took place in St. John's Church, Newburgh. The couple will make their home in Kingston.

FIRST CHRISTMAS CARD WAS CREATED IN 1842

Over 250 years ago English school children wrote Christmas expressions of goodwill called "Christmas pieces". From this school chore came the gracious custom of sending Christmas cards.

The first known Christmas card was created in 1842 in London by a young etcher, named William Egley. Original of this first card is now on display in the British Museum.

In the United States, Louis Prang published the first Christmas cards. During the 1870's and 80's, Prang produced thousands of beautiful cards, and has become known as the grandfather of the business.

HOLDS CHRISTMAS PARTY

On Friday evening, December 10, Oakdale Rebekah Lodge held a Christmas party after the regular Lodge meeting.

The Christmas tree, brought in by Sis. Edith Keller, decorated with the assistance of Sis. Edith Hatch, was very colorful and attractive.

There were 19 members present at the table, decorated with candles and centred with a lovely cake, the handiwork of Dooher's Bakery, donated by Sis. Edith Keller, Noble Grand.

After an exchange of gifts the dainty lunch brought the enjoyable evening to a close.

Sis. Nina Embury thanked Sis. Keller on behalf of Oakdale for her lovely donations.

ST. JOHN'S S. S. PARTY

On Wednesday evening, St. John's Anglican Church choir was host to the church Sunday School scholars and teachers in the Parish Hall. A bounteous supper was served to over 50 scholars. The tables were gaily decorated for the festive season and Christmas favors were in order.

Having done justice to the supper the scholars were entertained with games and Carol singing, and before leaving for their homes each was presented with a gift and fruit.

ANNE HIRST

Your Family Counselor

"Dear Anne Hirst: I am a bundle of nerves. Lately I'm so impatient with the children, and I get so upset that my stomach is tied in knots. Little things annoy me something awful, and then I find fault with everybody instead of praising the good in them as I should."

"I feel that my husband and I need to get out together more, but his work prevents our planning it. We can't pay a baby-sitter because he is a fiend for saving nickels. He has never helped to discipline the children, it all rests with me. I am, I'm afraid, on the verge of collapse."

"I cannot seem to give either my husband or the children the love they need. My mother was never affectionate nor demonstrative. I don't want to get like that, but I'm on my way to being worse! Until lately I've never been out of the house alone. But this semester I've signed up for a Parent-Education class, and one in volleyball. Is this wise? I need some kind of help."

"What would you suggest? I am only 25, but I feel 60!"

TIED OUT
• It is refreshing to see a wife
• diagnose her troubles objec-tively and prescribe a program to lighten them.

• You could not do better, I believe, than attend these classes regularly. The mental and physical stimulation you get will make you a happier woman within a short time; you will bring back to your family a lighter spirit, a broader outlook and new enthusiasms that cannot help benefit you all.

• Showing affection, and being articulate about it, is a wonderful gift. Brought up in the restrained atmosphere of your mother's home, you had to stifle any inclination to express your natural emotions; they were all bottled up inside you — and now you realize what that did to you. You are determined that your family shall not suffer that way. It will be almost like making yourself over, but as these classes (and their members) inspire you, you will break down the confining barriers you've known and reveal the brighter spirit that lies dormant.

• You need few ideas from me — except to invite your friends in more often, get to church more regularly, and have faith in yourself. You will not change in a day or a week, so don't let the time elapse get you down. Take things more easily, and stop censuring yourself so harshly. You are on the right track, and if I know people, you will stay there. My congratulations and good wishes.

SCHOOLGIRL'S PROBLEM

"Dear Anne Hirst: I've just entered a new school, and I find that all the students go around together in big cliques. There is one group I would like to join, but the ring-leader's boy friend likes me!"

"I don't like him, but all the girls are so cool to me now. It hurts terribly, because they are really nice girls."

"How can I win their friendship?"

MARY

• It is a mistake to try to force yourself into any group just yet; it is a bit early for that, and besides, such cliques usually make the first move. Be pleasant to all the students, but concentrate on your studies and give them all the energy you have. As the girls observe your industry (and they will) they will come to respect your application, at least; friendship is apt to follow.

• Later on you can practice those little ways to show your liking that you would employ with any other nice girls. Ask one or two occasionally to advise you in your classes. (We all like to be thought superior, and this approach almost never fails). After school, invite one to have a coke with you, or make some similar gesture. Those cliques are sometimes formidable, remember, and all this will take time.

• You will, of course, avoid this boy, and if he persists, tell him off. The word gets around.

If you are discouraged with yourself, analyze your shortcomings coldly, and do something about them. Anne Hirst stands by to help and cheer you on. Write her at Box 1, 123 Eighteenth St., New Toronto, Ont.

Radio Gags

Norman Paul, who thinks up the Durante gags, rates this item as one of Jimmy's great laugh-gewitters.

The sweetest guy in show business was describing the celebrities at the opening of the opera in New York.

"Lady Mendl," began Jimmy, "wore a diamond tiara in her hair; Mrs. Vanderbilt a ruby tiara, but all eyes were on me."

"What did you have on your head?" asked Don Ameche.

"Popcorn," replied Jimmy. "Some guy in the balcony had a leaky bag."

Paul Henning, who writes the Burns & Allen show, said their best laugh maker never got on the air. Afraid of censorship, they snipped it off the tape.

Gracie was at a costumer's looking for masquerade suits for herself and George when she noticed an interesting outfit. "That cowboy suit hanging there might look good on George."

The costumer says, "That's from the picture, 'The Outlaw,' and I can give you, Gracie, the costume Jane Russell wore."

"Oh no, thank you," said Gracie. "I could never fill Jane Russell's shoes."

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

A dog's life on a farm isn't what it used to be. Time was when he lived a more or less carefree existence. He could take off after a rabbit without a second thought, or have a friendly early morning frolic with Lassie across the way. But not any more — at least not if he lives on a farm anywhere near a busy highway. Conditions for dog-living have changed just as they have for humans, but unfortunately many a dog doesn't know it. He goes after his rabbit as usual. If the rabbit runs across the road the dog runs too. His one aim and object the pursuit of the rabbit. Too often that is his undoing. It isn't the rabbit that gets killed but the dog — by a passing car. That evidently happened at our gateway yesterday — but not to either of our dogs, thank goodness — although the little dog that was killed was very much like our Honey. When Dee and Art drove in they thought it was Honey, but Honey, by her own instinct, has reached the stage when she knows enough to keep away from the road. There was a time when she loved to run down to the gate, retrieve the evening newspaper and bring it home. Now she never goes after it unless I am with her. Tippy, too, keeps well within bounds as, with rheumatism in one leg, she seems to realize she isn't as fleet of foot as she used to be. If only someone could perfect a breed of dog — and cat — that would be content to stay right around the farm buildings! Take a drive along the highway almost any day of the week and one is practically certain to come across a mangled dog or cat. And how one hates to see it. Not only has somebody's pet been killed but the motoring public has been endangered by its presence on the road. A dog runs out from a ditch; the motorist swerves to avoid it — as a result it is sometimes the motorist and not the dog who gets killed. I don't think I would like having a puppy to train these days — too much responsibility involving both man and beast.

Well, neither Partner nor I got down to the Royal Winter Fair. I had been looking forward to it for some time but we just couldn't make the grade. But I notice Halton County did pretty well without the moral support of our presence. The Wheat-King's Crown and the Queen's Guinea both coming to Halton Exhibitors made us feel very proud of our little county — even though we still have a soft spot in our hearts for Western exhibitors. The first prize pumpkin also came from Halton and no doubt there were numerous awards for pedigreed cattle — only we haven't got around to studying the prize list yet.

What with championship winners, and other outstanding awards in agriculture, plus the glowing write-up the Financial Post gave our County town of Milton just recently, we really feel as if Halton is on the map. So often, in the past, when asked for our address I have been met with a blank stare after having said "Milton". But I think that day will soon be gone forever, especially when Highway 401 goes through. As to that, we are beginning to wonder if it ever will! With so many costly bridges to rebuild how can the Highway Department get around to straight construction jobs? Hurricane Hazel will make herself felt for many months to come.

We had a busy time on our farm last week. Among other things the ploughing was finished, a veal calf shipped, the last lot of coal delivered (we hope) and a celebration for Partner's birthday. Then on Sunday we had a visitor for dinner. Hardly had he gone when Dee, Art, Dave, Joy and Bob all arrived about the same time. Ten minutes later along came friends from Oakville. They all stayed for supper. Dave was put into rompers and explored the house — on his hands and knees. We hastily rounded up waste-paper baskets, ashtrays from low table and the latest magazines. Where ever Dave went the dogs followed but Mitchie-White kept well out of his way. Once, while standing at the coffee table Dave took two or three steps by himself but he didn't realize he had achieved such a breath-taking accomplishment! However, suppose it won't be long now before he takes to the perpendicular way of life. And then before we know it, his baby day will be left behind.

Anybody got a Christmas cactus in bloom? Mine is loaded down with buds. I am keeping it in a cool place, trying to retard growth until Christmas. But I am afraid in spite of all I can do it will come to full bloom ahead of time. One of these times I hope to get around to counting the buds. And that will be quite a job.

MERRY MENAGERIE

"There they go again—still trying to prove they can swim circles around me!"

Taking It All In — Like many another parent, Queen Juliana, of The Netherlands, right, eavesdrops as her daughters tell Santa Claus what they'd like for Christmas. Princess Margriet, with plaid scarf, looks on as her sister, Princess Beatrix, shakes hands with St. Nicholas. Behind the queen is Trygve Lie, former UN secretary general, who also turned out to greet St. Nicholas on his arrival in Amsterdam.

Another fire will break out...

That's what is happening right now and 'round the clock somewhere in Canada.

In the average year, the insurance business handles more than $75 million in fire losses — quite aside from other claims.

It is the size of the loss figure which regulates the rates for every different type of fire, automobile and casualty insurance in various parts of Canada. If losses increase out of proportion to earnings, then insurance rates go up. On the other hand, if losses fall off, rates decrease.

In effect, Canadians collectively determine their insurance costs through their care or carelessness.

HASTINGS COUNTY ASSESSMENT LIKELY TO REACH $28 MILLION

The Hastings County assessment will in all probability reach 28 millions or more, when re-assessments of all municipalities is completed some time next year, members of County Council were told recently.
Giving his report to council,
County Assessor, Cecil Geen, told councillors that only four more municipalities in the county remained to be re-assessed and it was expected this work would be completed next year.

Municipalities in which re-assessment was started and completed this year included the townships of Limerick, $166,450; Faraday, $250-
000; McClure, Wicklow, Bangor,
$363,675; Dungannon, $271,300;
Wollaston, $227,000; Bancroft village, $757,500; Frankford, $800,000; and the township of Thurlow where work was started last year and completed this year, $7,125,623.

The assessor noted that figures of the completed re-assessments were generally in line with spot assessments made earlier although the individual municipalities in some cases differed considerably.
Spot assessments in Thurlow had indicated that the new assessment would be around $6,000,000. This estimate was made two years ago and since then there had been a big growth in the township, and also industries had assessed more than was anticipated.

Mr. Geen noted that courts of revision had made very few changes in the assessments and councils had stood by their assessors. "This shows confidence in the local assessor and in the system being used," he said.

Jimmy Green, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Green, Stirling,

by Dr. A. C. E. McGonigle, of Belleville.

Gene Ingram, 12, was showing Green how to load a shotgun, when the gun went off. The charge struck
Green a glancing blow in the chest.
Dr. E. A. Carleton, of Stirling,

COOPER AND
REMINGTON W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of Cooper and Remington W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Leonard Graham on Wednesday, December 1st.

Roll Call, "My Favorite Carol", was answered by 24 members and visitors.

Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved. The Community
Friendship Roll Call was taken by Mrs. E. Wartman. Treasurer, Mrs.
A. Parks, gave a very satisfactory report on the Quilting and Pot Luck Dinner, held at Mrs. Stan
Rollins' recently. The January meeting is to be held at Mary Taylor's.

Mrs. A. Bird, convener of the Nominating Committee, read the list of nominations for the new year and Mr. Lewis conducted the election of officers. Mr. Lewis made a short speech of commendation to the ladies of the W.M.S. for their faithfulness.

As this was the Christmas meeting, Mrs. Rollins followed the Worship Service as given in the Missionary Monthly. A candle light service was conducted by Mrs. Rollins, assisted by Mrs. Maurice Reynolds and Mrs. E. Wartman. Mrs.
Lewis said the prayers. Hymn 34 was repeated in unison. Several Carols were sung. Mr. Lewis offered prayer. Collection was taken and dedicated by Mr. Lewis.

As this was also Baby Band meeting, Mrs. Gordon Holmes, Leader, then took charge. There were eleven children present. She read two stories for the children, which were much enjoyed by adults as well as children. Mrs. Al Bird acted as Group Leader and a short program of Carols and Christmas readings were given.

Mrs. G. Graham read "The Folly of Parson Brown". Mrs. C. Bailey read "The Night Before Christmas" and illustrated it by pictures. Mrs.
Harry Whiteman sang a solo. Mrs.
A. Parks read "What Does Christmas Mean to You". Mr. Lewis closed the meeting with prayer.

A bazaar was held following the meeting. The articles were all sold and a nice sum was realized. The members also turned in their holiday bags for the year. The hostess and her assistants served lunch and a social half hour was enjoyed.

The following is the list of officers for the new year.

WEDDINGS

BROUGH-BRADSHAW

St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, was the scene of a lovely winter wedding on Saturday, December 4, at 2:00 p.m., when Lula June Bradshaw, Reg. N., of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Bradshaw, became the bride of Clifford Gordon Brough, of Madoc, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Brough. The Rev. William Giovetti, rector of the church, officiated before a pretty background of chrysanthemums and evergreens.

Traditional wedding music was rendered, and "The Lord's Prayer" as a vocal solo.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, the bride wore a charming bridal gown of white net over satin fashioned with molded bodice and long sleeved fitted jacket. The floor length skirt was accented by a rgt peplum beaded with seed pearls and rhinestones, and bows of mother-of-pearl sequins. She wore a fitted white headress and shoulder length veil, and carried a white prayer book, crested with tiny Sweetheart roses and white-satin streamers.

Miss Dawn Johnston, Reg. N., was her only attendant, gowned in floor length shrimp colored net over taffeta, with matching gloves and headress, enhanced by tiny clusters of shrimp colored flowers set in fluted net. She carried a hand bouquet of white carnations and mums surrounded by bronze leaves.

Mr. Morris Brough, of Madoc, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsmen, and Mr. Jack Ward and Mr. Carl Trotter were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of Mrs. Don Wannamaker. The bride's table was decorated with pink and white streamers, which cascaded from a cluster of white wedding bells. The bride's mother, gowned in emerald silk with corsage of red roses, received, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore grey nylon and red rose corsage.

For travelling to points west, the bride chose a Jantzen knitted ice-blue wool boucle ensemble, trimmed with tiny white angora crosses, centred with rhinestones, with navy accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Brough will reside at 31 Elgin Street, Oshawa, Ont.

Guests were present from Belleville, Brighton, and Oshawa.

FOUR EMPLOYEES
BETHLEHEM STEEL
WERE INJURED

Four employees of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, Marmora, returning from work last Friday night, were injured on the Foxboro road last week, and glad to report her condition as favorable.

The car, driven by Walter Weatherell, of Carrying Place, was southbound, behind a truck, which turned into the McFarland Quarry, forcing a northbound car to skid head-on into the Weatherall vehicle. John King, of Belleville, and Mr. Weatherall were the most seriously injured.

BANNOCKBURN

Miss Linda Nicholson underwent an appendectomy at Belleville Hospital last week, and glad to report her condition as favorable.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ramsay and family were guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. Noble, at Madoc on Sunday.

The W.M.C. met on Wednesday night at the Parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fournier, and family, also Mr. Rea Donly, all of Belleville, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Donly.

Mrs. F. Harris attended the Christmas Pageant at the O. S. D., Belleville, on Friday night.

ONTARIO DEPARTMENT of HIGHWAYS • Geo. H. Doucett, Minister

All this - and more miles per gallon too!

Be sure to try out the phenomenal effect of "variable pitch propellers" in Dynaflo Drive!

MAYBE—among the current crop of new 1955 models—there's another car with an advance that can hold a candle to this one. But we doubt it. We doubt it because nowhere—among the features of other cars that we've heard about, or seen—is there anything to compare with what's actually happened to Buick.

It all started with the fact that modern air liners get two big advantages because they can change the pitch of their propellers.

First, they get off the ground hundreds of feet sooner than they used to.

Second, they can stretch their gasoline by setting propeller blades at just the right "pitch" for cruising. So Buick engineers asked themselves—"If you can do it with air, why can't you do it with oil—the oil inside a Dynaflo Drive?"

And to make a long story short—they could, and they did.

They engineered the propeller-like blades inside the "stator" of a Dynaflo Drive so they can change their pitch as much as 75 degrees.

That provides one setting for more-miles-per-gallon, and another for an instant surge of power when it's needed.

All you have to do is push the accelerator pedal the last half-inch beyond the full throttle position—and a-way you go!

Of course, there's a lot more to make a visit to our showrooms the "must" of the new-car year.

There's a step-up in styling as sensational as the step-up in power. And the step-up in horsepower is this: 236 in the ROADMASTER, SUPER and CENTURY—188 in the SPECIAL.

But the thrill of the year is Buick's latest engineering "first"—and what it does for the man or woman who drives the latest and greatest Dynaflo Drive.

Pay-off on progress!

Buicks today go a lot farther on a gallon of gas, thanks to constant improvement in Dynaflo and in engine design. Even the 236 h.p. ROADMASTER averages more miles per gallon than Buicks of six years ago.

TABLE TALKS

Jane Andrews.

Now that the time for children's parties is with us again, mothers will be faced with the problem of what to give the "young fry" to drink. Milk of course, is the most nutritious, but since a child likes something "different" at a party, it is a good idea to serve a drink which not only contains some valuable health-giving elements but is also agreeable to the taste and "different" from the run of the mill beverages. Here are a couple of unusual and tested recipes which should go over well with the youngsters.

HONEY SPICED TEA

4 level tablespoons tea
2 level tablespoons whole cloves
1 cup of strained orange juice
1/2 cup lemon juice
3/4 to 1 cup honey
8 cups freshly boiled hot water

Pour 5 cups boiling water over the tea and cloves. Let steep for five minutes, strain. Add orange and lemon juices, honey and remaining 3 cups hot water. Stir until honey is thoroughly dissolved.

Here again is a delightful fruit punch which will no doubt please both young and their parents too.

ARCADIA FRUIT PUNCH

2 quarts strong tea (made with 12 tea bags or 12 teaspoons of tea)
2 cups lemon juice (strain)
4 cups orange juice (strain)
2 cups sugar
1 1/2 cups cranberry or grape juice
2 quarts water
1 quart ginger ale

Mix tea, fruit juices, water and sugar and chill. Just before serving add ginger ale and pour over piece of ice in punch bowl (makes about 2 gallons).

Mothers who find difficulty in getting their children to drink milk might try serving Cambric Tea. This way of giving a new taste to milk but in no way reducing its nutritive value has become very popular in Eastern Canada in many institutions and schools. It has long been the custom in "Tea-drinking" Britain to serve "Milky Tea" to youngsters.

To make Cambric Tea simply add a dash of tea to the glass

What's Cooking?—Home-baked ideas, on display at an inventors' show in Paris, France, and this electric oven is hot off the mind of newspaperwoman Jean LeMaire. It features inside illumination and an elevator-type table for food.

"C" ISN'T FOR "CHERRY"—It's for vitamin C, and juice of the cherry-like acerola berries which fill these tubs on a plantation at Sahana Seca, Puerto Rico, is said to yield as much as 80 times more Vitamin C than an equal quantity of orange juice. The once-wild shrubs which produce the berries are now being cultivated for their health-rich harvest.

of milk. It can have no ill effects whatsoever and the change in flavour often encourages stubborn youngsters to enjoy their milk.

Incidentally if you are looking for a first-rate pick-up and energy restorer try a cup of clear tea, with honey added and float in it a slice of lemon. It is being used by sportsmen as an energy restorer and is delicious to taste too.

No Cheap Scores In This Game

It may not be tactful to mention the matter to any past or present pupils of Eton College, but Nov. 30 this year also had something of a significance for rival Harrow School. The most renowned of all Old Harrowians, Sir Winston Churchill, celebrated his 80th birthday. And the nation will be as one paying generous tribute to the man internationally acclaimed as the greatest modern Englishman.

Old Etonians, among them Sir Anthony Eden and the Marquess of Salisbury who rank second and third respectively to Sir Winston in the British Cabinet, will maintain their Eton decorum about the fanaticism for this hero from Harrow. The old monochrome will be given a seemingly flourish as they declare, "Jolly well done, old boy," and all that sort of thing. And that, for the purpose of my story, anyway, will be that.

Primarily the thoughts of all loyal Etonians on the last day of November is toward their Alma Mater. Always on this day, from time immemorial, a carnival of fate and football is staged at the most famous of England's scholastic seminaries. The Thameside townlet in the shadows of Windsor Castle goes gay with house flags against a usually gray sky. And parents and old boys, to say nothing of photographers and newsreelmen, flock down to watch the football festival, writes Sidney Skilton in the Christian Science Monitor.

The day starts shortly after breakfast time with the final of the Lower Boy House Cup and ends in the gloom of the evening with a clash between Oxford Old Etonians and Cambridge Old Etonians. In between, and highlighting the day is Eton's Wall Game. Like those other peculiarly English institutions, parliament, cricket, and fish and chips the wall game knows no actual origin. And it continues an absolute source of bewilderment to most people attempting to understand it.

A theory generally, and certainly conveniently, accepted is that the wall game just grew with the school which is now more than 500 years old. But those with more probing minds have great respect for the view expressed by a fellow of the Royal Historical Society. It is that the wall game arrived at Eton in 1624 when Sir Henry Wootton became Provost. He is said to have brought it from Italy where he had served in the diplomatic service as the English ambassador in Venice.

The same historian further claims that the wall game at Eton comes from a style of football which was played and written about in Italy around the middle of the 16th century. A wall was an integral part of the Florentine and Siennese versions of the game and was described in a number of books printed in Venice more than four centuries ago. In support of the historian's supposition is the retention of certain Latin phrases in the Eton game like,

The woman who possesses beautiful hands doesn't come by them accidentally. She consistently gives her hands care and attention, keeps them out of very hot water, wears rubber gloves for household tasks and is faithful about creams or lotions.

Any housewife must dip her hands into water frequently during the day. She should keep her favourite hand cream or lotion handy on a kitchen shelf so that she can apply it when she takes her hands out of water. But she should also be consistent in her wearing of rubber gloves.

For women who haven't tried rubber gloves, there are water-tight neoprene gloves on the market that are lined with an interlocking knitted fabric to absorb perspiration. They have a special nonslip grip and can be tossed in with the family wash when they're ready for cleaning.

The reasons for wearing household gloves are sound ones: To protect your hands from long soaking in water, to prevent cuts and bruises, to keep fingernails from chipping and to preserve a manicure, to allow you to use much hotter water in washing dishes and to cut garlic or onions without having the odor cling to your hands.

Her fabric-lined rubber gloves protect her from extra-hot water, give her a nonskid grip and preserve her hands' appearance.

for example, "Calx" which means heel, or foot, and from which the Italian "Calcio" (a kick) is derived.

The games are between two teams of 10 a-side. One is comprised of the Collegers, that is the small but elite company of residents in the college itself, and the other is made up of Oppidians who are the town or boarded out boys. The striking of 12:30 by the old clock in Lupton's Tower is the signal for the start of play which takes place in an area between the wall running along the Slough-Windsor road and a furrow which is the touchline some six yards away.

Situated on this wall, approximately 12 feet high, are all the young schoolboys who can manage to make it plus all the photographers who must make it if they wish to get any picture at all of the struggling and straining mass of humanity locked in combat against the wall. The ball, somewhat smaller than a soccer ball, is there somewhere but it does not seem to matter because goals are very rarely scored with it.

To score a goal at Eton's wall brand of football it is necessary first to secure the ball from a scrimmage in a certain region of the wall and then to shunt it at one of the awkwardly placed targets—a little old door at one end and an old elm tree trunk at the other. The difficulty of this accomplishment may be judged from the goal scoring record since results were first tabulated in 1841. It is three!

In an attempt to remedy this state of affairs and make goal scoring a privilege witnessed by more than about one assembly every 40 years it was decided last year to reduce the number of players from eleven to ten. This did have the effect of opening up the game and for the first time since 1949 there was a result other than a pointless draw. The Collegers won by two shies (ten of which count as a goal) to nil. But there was still no goal.

How High Is High — How Fast Is Fast?

Up where the sky becomes space and where the vapor trails appear behind planes, the impossible is becoming the possible.

To the roar of jet and rocket engines, man-made limitations are being thrust aside. Ordinary space and speed concepts are undergoing vast changes.

Where in 1906 the first recorded air-speed mark was clocked at 25.66 miles an hour—set by A. Santos Dumont in France—the year 1954 finds its fastest plane piercing space at 1,650 miles an hour (the latest released figures, at any rate).

When you stop to reduce that speed down to seconds, it means travelling a mile, or 5,280 feet, every 2 1/5 seconds. Or somewhere between 2,000 and 3,000 feet every time you can say the "Jack" in "Jack Robinson." By the time you managed to utter "Robinson," the plane would be another half mile away.

The only way you could follow a plane in flight with your eyes at that speed near the ground (it hasn't been done near the ground yet) would be to look ahead of where you expected the plane to be seconds before you expected it to get there. Then, you might possibly see it go by. Actually, you couldn't turn your head or flick your eyes quickly enough to watch it flash past, writes Bert Ram B. Johnson in the Christian Science Monitor.

But FAST for a plane is as a snail ambling backwards compared to FAST for a rocket. American-built rockets have reached tumultuous speeds of about 5,000 miles an hour. We'll let you figure that out in terms of seconds.

How high is high? These rockets have climbed up to the vicinity of 250 miles from earth. So have some of the Soviet rockets, we are told. Up that high, far beyond the blueness of our earth's atmosphere, space is almost completely dark. Reason: the atmosphere is so thin (no dust) that it contains no particles to reflect the light of the sun.

Only objects large enough to reflect light catch the sunlight. That is why the space ships and space platforms in television programs are made to glow with light.

The rest of space is dark, out about 100 miles from the earth. But, interestingly enough, the light is passing through space all the time. Only objects that can reflect light are visible, humanly.

Highest that humans have flown thus far is about 90,000 feet, or some 17 miles up, according to official United States Air Force announcements. These announcements do not, however, disclose exactly when this occurred. One can assume it was in 1954.

The altitude record was made over California by Maj. Arthur Murray, in a Bell Aircraft plane named the X 1A. Air-launched from a B-29 bomber six miles above the earth, it was powered by a Reaction Motors Corporation rocket-engine which thrust the 35-foot-long plane 60,000 feet higher in four minutes. This is the same plane in which Maj. Charles Yeager achieved the speed record of 1,650 miles an hour.

Major Murray, on his altitude flight was not yet as high as the darkness of space. Quite the reverse. He became keenly aware of the intense glare of the sun. "I felt closed to the sun than I did to the earth," Major Murray said in describing the experience, to a Harrisburg newspaperman, William T. Lunsford, Jr. "and I was lonelier than I have ever been in my life."

"Then I looked down, and I could see the roundness of the earth. It seemed as if I could see 200 miles in all directions. As I looked down, the part of the earth I knew was green had shangied to olive drab. And the mountains were almost black."

"I kept thinking, 'if I could only shut out the brightness of the sun.' It was good that I had a data pad with a dark background this time, because on my first flights the sun was so bright, I couldn't read my knee pad."

Major Murray found the plane somewhat difficult to control since the atmosphere was so thin at that altitude.

But he swung the X 1A into a glide pattern for the long descent, and 30 minutes later landed on the hot sands of the Muroc dry lake bed.

Fantastic stories of conditions in the upper atmosphere are coming back from these space pioneers, and thought patterns need to be revised so often, on the basis of new data.

Take the case of the so-called sound barrier, which is that point in flight when a plane approaches the speed of sound—750 miles an hour, at sea level. First attempts to break through the sound barrier in 1947 met with considerable buffeting for the plane.

Some years before 1947 a British natural scientist started what is now called the "legend of the sonic barrier." He said that when an airplane approached the speed of sound (Mach 1) it would shake to pieces from the effect of shock waves.

But the barrier is being pierced every day now by United States Air Force interceptors.

One pilot describes the puncturing of that supposedly impenetrable wall thus: "It's like a tiger going through a paper hoop."

Even the concept that buffeting is necessary is changing. We noticed a brief note in a recent issue of Aviation Week magazine which said: "English Electric P-1 (a turbo jet fighter aircraft) has exceeded the speed of sound and gone well beyond Mach 1 with 'complete absence of buffeting,' reports British Minister of Supply Duncan Sandys."

We thought we'd find out whether Supply Minister Sandys could, within the bounds of security regulations, tell us why there was no buffeting. Our answer from the Ministry of Supply was about as brief as the magazine item. It read:

"Thank you for your letter about the English Electric P-1 exceeding the speed of sound. I am sorry to say that it is not possible to give any further details."

But apparently it happened—with no buffeting!

As for the heat barrier (the high temperatures generated by friction of the atmosphere on the metal and plastic skin of the plane, that's another matter, but not one that is looked upon as impossible of solution.

Many aircraft engineers while not overlooking the fact that friction heat is regarded as a problem, dislike the item heat barrier." Some deny there is such a thing.

One Boeing engineer says: "The barrier to speed is not heat. Atmospheric speed is limited by the power plant. We've always been able to use the most powerful engines designed. There's no reason now to think we won't be able to continue to do so. We've been designing for higher and higher altitudes. There's no reason to believe we won't keep right on going up."

Some of the problems met in the heat zone are:

At 35,000 altitude, gasoline boils at speed Mach 1.4, Plexiglass melts at Mach 1.7, kerosene boils at Mach 2, solder melts at Mach 2.4, and glass softens at Mach 3.6.

There is still a need, Boeing experts point out, for a lubricant that won't deteriorate at high temperatures and tires that won't blow up at high temperatures and low external pressures.

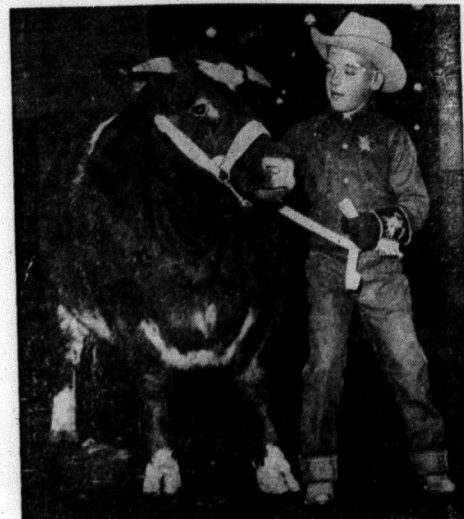

Someday, progress in aerodynamics may be so far advanced that we may wonder how people ever got so concerned about what the heat barrier could do.

TRANSIT STORY

The lost-and-found department of the Seattle transit system reported a telephone call from a woman who said she had left a package containing a brassiere on a bus.

"What bus?" said the transit company employee.

"Size 36," replied the woman.

THE FARM FRONT

by John Russell

This year, the Canadian Farm Loan Board, a federal government agency engaged in making long term mortgage loans to farmers, issued its 25th annual report. In its 25 years of operation, the Canadian Farm Loan Board has lent $91,548,192 to some 39,415 Canadian farmers. During the past year, a total of $7,816,750 was approved for loans, an increase of approximately $2,000,000 over the previous year.

During the year ending March 31, 1954, 2,091 first mortgage loans and 591 second mortgage loans were approved. The average loan made was $3,740. One out of every five loans made in 1954 was for over $6,000.

Farm Loan Board loans are available only to farmers actually farming the land offered as security and are made for such purposes as purchasing livestock and farm implements; paying debts; assisting in the purchase of farm land; making farm improvements; etc. Farmers may borrow up to $10,000 on first mortgage at an interest rate of 5 per cent repayable over a period of 25 years or up to $12,000 on combined first and second mortgages.

Many rapid growing strains of fowl have been introduced to most parts of Canada in recent years. Strains which grow rapidly and produce meat economically may not be the most economical producers of eggs. It becomes of increasing importance, therefore, to know the relative performance of the various strains both as to egg production and rate of growth.

Egg production and growth records are now available from five purebred strains tested at the Experimental Station at Fredericton, N.B., reports Leonard Griesbach. Growth records have also been obtained on eight crosses involving these strains. Of the five purebred strains tested, four were bred with meat production the primary object, one was a strain of a general purpose breed which had been selected for years with egg production as the primary object.

Following are some of the interesting results obtained: (1) The general purpose strain grew reasonably well but definitely slower than the top meat producing strains. (2) The average weight at 12 weeks of all crossbreds tested, was 4 1/2 ounces higher than the average of all purebreds tested. Some crosses weighed no more than their heaviest parents but others were considerably heavier than either parent. (3) Birds of the general purpose strain which survived to 500 days of age produced more eggs than survivors of the meat strains. (4) One of the strains which had the highest survivor egg production, had the lowest egg production index to 500 days based on the average production of all birds housed. The low production index was due to high mortality in the laying pens. (5) One pen of crossbreds, the parents of which were only mediocre egg producers, produced more eggs and had a lower mortality than any purebred strain tested.

These results emphasize the importance of obtaining information on strains or crosses used for commercial egg or meat production. The ability to lay well and/or to grow rapidly combined with high vitality and resistance to disease are of primary importance in the economical production of poultry products.

Tamed Savage Cow Bronco Buster Style

Too many townspeople still regard the agricultural worker as an unskilled, ignorant chap with straw in his hair — the "Hodge" and the "Giles" of innumerable jokes.

He's not. He has to know his job inside out, which needs intelligence plus years of experience. This applies especially to men like George Vowles. He's a head cowman, sturdy, self-reliant and level-headed.

Now forty-five, George became interested in cows as a boy at school. After lessons were over — and sometimes before breakfast — he would give a hand with the milking, a job not so easy as it looks. "To do it properly," he says, "you must understand the moods of the cows. They're all different — and just like human beings they need humouring. If they think you're a novice they won't co-operate."

He recalls one cow which resolutely refused to part with her milk. She didn't like the newcomer who was trying to do the job. Yet when Vowles took over the animal meekly submitted.

Grandpa's Trick
"Yes," reflects George, "it's a mistake to think that cows are kind of milk-producing machines. You can get really fond of them."

His remarks are typical of all good cowmen. To George, cows are the great interest in life. He regards them almost as a sacred trust, and to minister to their needs puts in all sorts of hours. When a calf is due he barely sleeps or eats until it's safely delivered.

Bulls? "Tricky," he admits. But he has his own methods of dealing with these uncertain-tempered and sometimes savage brutes. One morning he found half a dozen men vainly attempting to move a bull from one stall to another. It was pawing the ground, its eyes red with mingled fury and bewilderment. The men were scared stiff, and the massive but magnificent creature knew it. George strolled up and spoke to it gently — and it behaved like a lamb. "But," he warns, "I wouldn't advise a novice to try the same game!"

What gives him this uncommon power over bulls? "A trick my grandfather taught me," he confides. "And one his father taught him before that." But he won't divulge the secret — or rather, he can't. It depends on mutual sympathy between man and animal, and a total absence of fear.

Suppose you are charged by a bull? The worst thing you can do is to turn tail and run, unless, of course, you are within reasonable distance of a gate and safety.

"Instead," advocates Vowles, "stand still and face it. When it's almost on top of you give it a sharp tap on the nose and a leap aside. The bull will blunder on and give you a good chance of getting away." All very simple — if you possess the necessary courage and an exceptionally cool head.

Like all rugged individualists, George makes caustic remarks about officials. They arrive,

"one after the other," full of criticisms and impracticable suggestions. "But," he adds drily, "I've never known them to get their boots really dirty. They just poke their heads inside the netted door and that's that."

Nettles? Here's a link with pre-Norman England. It's a corruption of neat-house, and neat is the old Anglo-Saxon word for cattle.

Rationing Not Needed
Vowles also has a word or two to say about milk-rationing. "It wasn't necessary," he asserts. A statement with which many farmers agree. Every effort was made to increase supplies, and when this succeeded much of the extra was wasted.

Why? Bureaucracy again. A dairyman was allowed to give his customers only their bare ration. Offered more, he had to refuse, wasn't allowed to sell it, even if it went away. Theoretically, there was a way out. The producer could fill up the appropriate form, and eventually obtain permission to dispose of the surplus. "But," recalls George with a shrug, "by the time that was done the milk had gone sour."

For most of his life George Vowles has milked by hand. But recently machine-milkers have been installed. He doesn't like them. "They make things easier for me and the other men," he admits, "but I always think they can transmit disease from one animal to another. Hand-milking — and being scrupulously clean — is the safer way."

Neither does he believe in pasteurization. "Kills the good germs as well as the bad," he avers.

Wild Rodeo Act

Has he had any narrow escapes in dealing with cows and bulls? Apart from being kicked out of a stall and having a toe crushed, he recalls only one. It happened when George was a lad and a bit impetuous. Hearing frantic shouts he hurried to the scene, and found his employer pinned against the wall of a stall by a savage cow. Apparently, she thought he had designs on her calf — the one occasion, incidentally, when a normally docile creature may become angry.

What followed suggests the Wild West rather than an English farmyard. The stall was narrow, and George couldn't squeeze by the cow to help. So he leapt on to the animal's back and seized her by the ears. Slowly, she backed out — and then made a wild dash for the adjoining meadow. "It was like a rodeo act," laughs Vowles. Eventually, he slipped off and fell pretty heavily. "But directly this happened," he relates, "the cow stopped. Then she came and stood over me with a kind of inquiring look. All her anger had gone, and it seemed that she was apologizing for any damage done."

Hard Work — Likes It
What is a cowman's job really like? It's hard, sometimes dirty, and the hours are long. "Folk sometimes tell me I'm a fool to work seven days a week," laughs George. "But — I enjoy it. It's my life."

He is absolutely sincere in saying this. George Vowles really believes that his occupation is one which satisfies both mentally and physically. Talk about the drift from the land and he has a ready answer. "There's no real drift as you call it," he reports contemptuously. "Those who look for soft jobs in the towns are the type the country can do without. They have no sense of responsibility, no interest in anything but their own pleasures."

From this you will realize that George Vowles has no ambition to follow their example. "Put me in an office or factory," he comments fervently, "and I'd fade away and die!"

An excellent reason for remaining on the farm.

Stormy Sermon

On the whole, preachers who strive hard to bring originality and life into their sermons are suitably rewarded—but this is not always so.

The celebrated preacher Whitfield, for example, was renowned for rousing his audience to such a pitch that they fell on their knees and prayed. Then one day, preaching to a congregation of sailors, he said: "Boys, we have a clear sky and are making headway over a smooth sea. Then a dark cloud arises over the horizon. Don't you hear the distant thunder? Don't you see flashes of lightning? A storm gathers. Every man to his duty. How the waves rise and dash against the ship. The masts are gone. The ship is on her beam ends! What next?" He expected everyone to shout. "Let us pray!"

Instead, to a man they rose and screamed, "Take to the boats!"

More successful was an evangelist who observed a number of his congregation nodding, so paused in his sermon and yelled: "Fire! Fire!"

Up jumped one of the sleepers, crying, "Where, sir, where?"

"In hell," admonished the preacher solemnly. "In hell for those who sleep under the preaching of the word."

BAD MANNERS

Mother and son paused outside the office of a Philadelphia advertising dentist. There was an elaborate showcase revealing the latest in dentures and bridge-work.

"Mom," said the boy, "If I ever have to get false teeth I want that set in the corner."

"Hush Willie," she cautioned, "how many times must I tell you not to pick your teeth in public."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. R. Barclay Warren.

Praise for God's Gift
Psalm 148:1-3, 11-13; Matthew 1:18-25.

Memory Selection: O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our maker. Psalm 95:6.

Praise to God reaches a grand climax as we near year's end. That God in the person of His Son should take flesh is the marvel of history. Millions of people around the world will wonder at this event again this Christmas.

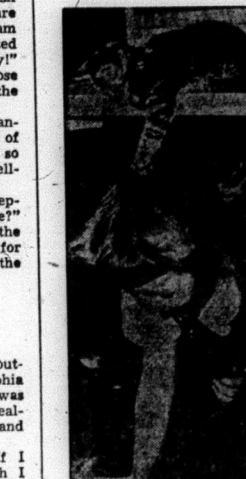

Halford E. Luccock wrote a stimulating article on The Christmas Baby Grew Up. Here it is in part.

"Part of the eternal appeal of the Christmas story lie in the fact that it is the story of a baby. Yet in that fact also lies a danger. For multitudes of people gladly make a sentimental response to the infant Christ, but they shrink from making a moral response to the Man, Christ Jesus. They miss the chief point in the Christmas story, which is that the Baby grew up into the Son of Man and the Son of God, who made a devastating challenge to a world of greed, of cruelty, and hard power.

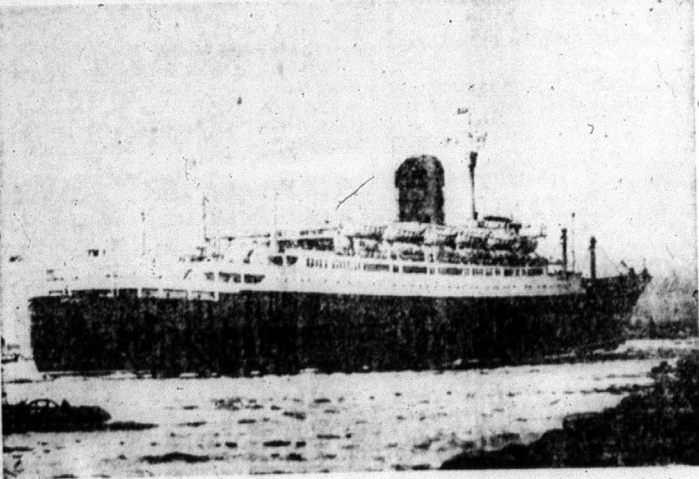

"A baby makes no ethical demands on life. It compels no deep disturbance of life. We can sing Christmas carols without letting Jesus come into our lives to arrange them in the discipleship of Him who calls us to take up a cross and follow Him.

"So there is need for stress on the truth that the Baby at Bethlehem grew up. He grew up into the Teacher, whose words are the only sure foundation for the world's life. He grew up into the Prophet, who brought an unyielding challenge to the dark powers of this world. He grew up into the Redeemer, who was lifted up on a cross and draws all men unto Him. When Jesus is not dealt with as the Master who claims undivided allegiance, the high meaning of Christmas is gone."

May our thoughts center around Jesus Christ, this season. May we think of Him not only as a Baby but as our Saviour.

IN MEMORIAM

WEASE—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Eliza Wease, of Coe Hill, who passed away
December 15th, 1951.

Beside your grave I often stand
With heart both crushed and sore
But in the gloom, the sweet words come:

"Not lost, but gone before".
God knows how much I miss you,
He counts the tears I shed
And whispers, "She only sleeps."
Your loved one is not dead".
So I'll be brave, dear mother,
And pray to God each day,
And when he calls me home to you
Your smile will guide the way.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by son Irvan, Margaret Wease and family.

This Means You

Owing to the number of fires caused by Christmas decorations on light wires, light sockets and Christmas tree lighting, etc., you are asked, at this season, to be particularly careful.

Carelessness may mean the loss of your home, your business, or perhaps some member of your family.

Smoking near Christmas trees is the cause of a large percentage of fires.

ANGLING THROUGH THE ICE

Ice fishing is fast growing in popularity. Each year more and more fishermen are heading for the open ice covered lakes with ice chisel and tackle to try their luck. Lake trout have, in the past, been the greatest attraction to ice fishermen, and in some areas still are top on the list. Lake trout are probably the most vulnerable to angling of all the salmonoid species and are becoming scarce in many of our inland lakes. In order to retain this important species of game fish in our local inland waters, anglers are urged to return all small lake trout caught in winter angling to the water, since more small trout are taken in winter angling with bait, than are taken by trolling during the summer months.

BANCROFT SCHOOLS ARE OVER-CROWDED

The population of Bancroft is most certainly increasing tremendously, as noted by the jump in school attendance recently. It has been reported, that a new four-room addition to the comparatively new high school will be built as soon as the Department of Education approves the expenditure. As soon as the addition is completed, all eight rooms will be filled. Classes are now being held in the basement room, the auditorium, the cafeteria and a storage room. It was predicted that by 1960 twelve classrooms, in addition to those now in use, will be required.

The public school at Bancroft is suffering the same overcrowded problem. Last Monday morning 37 pupils of Grade 4 started classes in the Community Hall. An additional teacher was hired to look after this class.

NIGHT SCHOOL ATTRACTS MANY AREA STUDENTS

The Night School being conducted by the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Department of Education here, is reported to be most successful, with enrolment far beyond expectations. Courses are being attended by over 250. The Department of Agriculture is bringing instructors from Kemptonville each Wednesday evening to instruct in motor mechanics and in electrical wiring. The typing classes are being held at Tweed High School on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, at which there is a capacity enrolment.

The number of housing units built in Canada during 1953 reached an all-time peak of 96,839. Canada's public hospitals operated at nearly four per cent above rated capacity in 1952, average 103.6 beds set up per 100 capacity.

OBITUARY

MRS. BESSIE BELL LEEMAN

Following a lengthy illness, Mrs. Bessie Bell Leeman, Belleville, died early Friday morning at the Belleville General Hospital, in her 57th year.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Allan Wright, Mrs. Leeman was born in Ivanhoe and lived in that vicinity until she moved to Belleville 35 years ago.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Thomas F. (Jean) Lafferty, of Belleville, and two brothers, German Wright, and Murney Wright, both of Belleville.

LAVERNE GERALD O'BRIEN

The death occurred in St. Joseph's Hospital on Monday, of Laverne Gerald O'Brien, infant son of Gerald O'Brien and the former Hazel Delore, of 240 King George St., Peterboro. The child was three days old.

Burial took place on Tuesday from the Duffus Funeral Home to St. Peter's Cemetery.

Until Canada has a much larger population, the country will always produce less per worker than the United States; and similarly will have less with which to pay for production.

A PERSONAL APPEAL TO YOU

In our world of today you are called upon to make so many sacrifices, physically and materially. I wonder if we realize the necessity and the end results of our donations. No doubt you have a very good idea and a decided mind in making certain donations for the betterment of your fellow man, whether it be (1) Physically, for the donation of your life's blood. (2) Materially to help the less fortunate than yourselves. Whether it be the Community Chest, the Salvation Army, Crippled Children. A local charity which is not being taken care of by the aforementioned established good works that are conducted by your local organizations. (3) Your less fortunate neighbour or relative who has had a financial reverse, unnecessary or unfortunate happenings to his home.

Truly it has been said that you never register or assess the proper degree of responsibility or heart break, of any cause or trouble, until it actually strikes home to you or yours, in any form.

I am making this appeal to you as one who has had a very close relation to the trouble and unfortunate circumstances which are attached to this dread disease, tuberculosis and its possibilities of cure, which I intend to relate to you.

Several years ago, a fellow employee of mine was stricken with this disease. With his stamina, desire to live, and as a result of modern medicine and treatment, he is a well man today. He was admitted to Sanatorium as practically a lost being.

In 1952, my own brother, Asa, who served several years overseas, was stricken with the same disease and is today a man rehabilitated to his position in business, the father and custodian of his family and a happy man. Twenty years ago this was not possible.

Today, your contribution in the way of Christmas Seals and the untiring work of the officials of our Provincial Government and our Association provide for the less fortunate and their families so that this should not happen to you.

It has been planned and arranged that a Mass Christmas Survey will be made in the spring of 1955 for prevention of this disease of tuberculosis in our County and you can do your part. Please do not let us down. Mail your contribution today and please help when you are called upon to do your bit.

Orliff "Boiler" Lloyd, Chairman of Publicity, Hastings County Tuberculosis Association.

ELDORADO AND UNION W.M.S.

The ladies met at the home of Mrs. Clifford Chambers, which was nicely decorated for Christmas. Mrs. Clifford Blakely presided, bringing some lovely thoughts on Christmas, and all joined in singing "It came upon the Midnight clear."

Mrs. Dan Robinson led in a beautiful candle light service, assisted by Mrs. K. Bateman, Mrs. F. Walker and Mrs. A. Robinson, using several Christmas Carols during the service.

Mrs. Claud Blakely gave a very interesting talk on Stewardship and Mrs. Cecil Blackburn gave some lovely poems in keeping with the season and Citizenship.

The minutes were read and approved and a discussion followed on having a Pot Luck Dinner and Quilting at the home of Mrs. R. Bateman after the New Year.

Mrs. C. Blakely closed the meeting, after which the hostess and her assistants served lunch, and a social time was enjoyed.

THE Season's Good Wishes

Christmas to the Pharmacist has a two-fold significance. It represents a period of great activity in the Drug Store, in the selection of proper gift merchandise, in the eye-catching seasonal display, in creating the spirit of warm friendliness that is so true a part of the operation of the Pharmacist.

Christmas to the Pharmacist, who is a sensitive community-minded citizen, gives him pause for reflection, for thankfulness for the security in his profession, for the friendly colleagues in his industry and for his gratitude to the Good Lord for his many blessings.

On behalf of our Store and Staff may I add OUR FRIENDLY GREETINGS. We extend to you and your families our sincerest wishes for PEACE, GOOD HEALTH, GOOD CHEER and PROSPERITY, and a fervent hope for a BOUNTIFUL NEW YEAR.

YOUNG DEER RESCUED

Officers Davison and Ferguson made a timely rescue of a buck fawn deer from the turbulent waters of the Madawaska River. No definite information is available but a local resident observed the animal as it plunged into the icy stream to evade the pursuit of a dog. Insecure ice, with sharp edges, lined the banks and the victim was forced to swim over a mile before it found suitable footing. By this time, it was so exhausted it was unable to get completely clear of the water, and except for its head, lay partly submerged for three hours. After a prolonged search the Officers were able to discover a boat and although it was not quite seaworthy, they were able to cross the river. They were astonished to discover the deer alive and with a little assistance, regained its feet, and in a short time was so well recovered, bounded into the nearby woods.

BEAVER

A number of colonies persist in setting up house-keeping in agricultural areas, with considerable damage to woodlots, tilled lands and public roads. To take care of these emergencies the Game and Fisheries Act authorizes removal by the landowner, in any manner. Occasionally it has been necessary to destroy the final member of one of these nuisance families by shooting, but it is not intended that licensed trappers interpret this emergency action as a privilege to be exercised on their respective trap-lines. To avoid any misunderstanding, we would suggest that any doubtful licensee consult with his local officer.

Officer Bob Davison reports that trappers, owing to indifferent fur prices, are reluctant to begin operations. Evidently quotations by fur dealers show very little improvement over last year.

A report from Officer Fred MacDonald informs that several commercial fishermen in the Bay of Quinte area have discontinued to operate their nets because of poor success. This apparently applies to both hoop and gillnets. In these waters hoopnet operators do not find it profitable to place nets under the ice and in the event of an unfavourable fall season, their returns are greatly reduced, as they are then entirely dependent on the spring catch.

TO BOOST NUMBER OF WORKERS

The Massey Harris-Ferguson Company announced a plan expected to boost employment in its plant to the peak-year level of 1951.

The company said it will start making the Ferguson line of farm implements in addition to its regular Massey-Harris lines.

Introduction of the new line means employment of about 1,000 more men than the company had in December, 1953, and will be about the same number as were working in 1951, a record year, company officials said. About 2,000 men were employed in 1951.

COAST-TO-COAST TELEVISION EXPECTED IN THREE YEARS

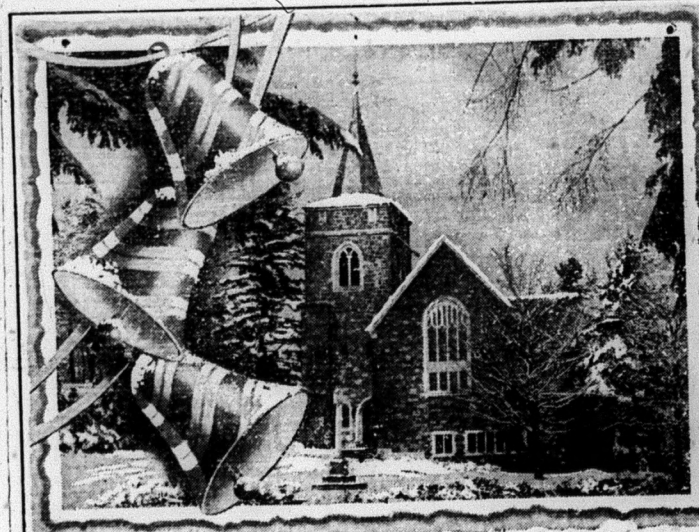

Montreal—A. D. Dunton, C.B.C. chairman, said recently the corporation plans to have a coast-to-coast television hook-up in three years.

Mr. Dunton made the statement at a meeting of the Associated Screen News workshop. He also said Montreal will be linked with the prairies in a T.V. network in two years.

FORESTRY CLUBS

Organization meetings have been held recently at the Denbigh School and at the Sydenham High School, when 31 pupils have joined the new forestry clubs. About half the members have submitted applications for trees and plan to carry out reforestation projects as part of their club program. The balance will be doing the woodlot management option.

Meetings will be held throughout the winter, under the direction of Mr. Ezra Ball, at Denbigh, and Mr. H. J. Millar, at Sydenham. Zone Forester John Stewart will assist with the instruction of members.

Season's Greetings

TINKLING BELLS, holly wreaths, winter scenes with evergreens, logs on hearth, candles bright, little faces beam delight... these, to us, are all warm reminders that a very special time is here... so a very special wish is due... May this Holiday Season bring you abounding stores of good cheer, peace and happiness.

Armstrong Bros.

AT BELLEVILLE

Mr. W. R. McAdam, the Assistant Commissioner, Ontario Division Red Cross Society, is speaking at Belleville Branch's Annual Meeting, which is being held at St. Thomas' Parish Hall, January 13th, commencing at 6.45.

W. R. McAdam, Assistant Commissioner of the Ontario Division Red Cross, is a native of Ottawa, and a graduate of the University of Toronto in Physical and Health Education. He came to the Red Cross in 1947 as Director of the new program to help Canadians towards self protection, Swimming and Water Safety.

Mr. McAdam was appointed Assistant Commissioner of the Ontario Division four years ago.

SMALL MOUTH BLACK BASS

The small mouth black bass, unlike the trouts and pickerel, cannot be spawned artificially, therefore it is necessary for hatchery staffs to trap the adult bass from lakes, transport them to our hatcheries and release them in ponds where they are left to spawn naturally.

After they have spawned and the eggs hatch the parent fish are removed from the ponds and returned to their native waters.

After a few weeks the young bass fry are removed from the ponds and distributed in district lakes.

An adult female small mouth bass deposits, on the average, about 45,000 eggs annually.

Local Hatcheries plant an average of 1,000 bass fry or fingerlings in each of our bass lakes each year or the equivalent of one quarter the effort of one adult female fish.

Most of our bass lakes support many hundreds adult females that under natural conditions produce many thousands young each year. Large healthy bass, as a rule, are a product of undercrowding, as they, like all other living things, do better when they have plenty of food and room in which to grow.

STIRLING, ONTARIO

YOUNG CHILD DROWNED IN CREEK AT STIRLING

Eric Jensen, 15-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jensen was dragged from a creek recently south of Stirling. He was dead.

The body had been located in a deep water hole in the stream. Men had traced the baby's footprints in the snow. Crowbars had to be used to free the body from the ice-covered rocks which partially covered the hole where the stream had been dammed.

Wandering about near the scene of the tragedy was Eric's 2½-year-old brother, Dennis, apparently oblivious of his brother's death.

Mr. and Mrs. Jensen were both away at work; she at Bata Shoe Co. in Batawa; he, at the Trenton airport. The Jensen family live about a mile and a half south of Stirling, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kemp, Mrs. Jensen's parents.

The two children had been sent out to play by their grandmother at 9 a.m. When she checked on them about an hour later, they could not be found, and becoming worried, called two neighbours, Jack Kane and Jack Sager, to help search for the youngsters.

ERNIE BATEMAN NAMED PRESIDENT FOR SIXTH TERM

W. E. "Ernie" Bateman, of Hungerford township, was named president of the Hastings County Cheese Producers at their annual meeting at Stirling. It is Mr. Bateman's sixth consecutive term as president. He is also a member of board of directors of the provincial organization.

Vice president is Allan Ketcheson, of Madoc, and directors include H. M. Coulter, for Hungerford; Arthur Hawes, for Huntingdon; Jack Morrison, Rawdon; Cecil Ketcheson, Thurlow; Sam Nicholson, Sidney; Ed Lazier, Tyendinaga; John Bell, Marmora; and Edward Robinson, Madoc.

Better sales of cheese during the past year had resulted in less cheese being in storage than in former years, according to W. O. Coon, provincial president. The British market had been normal and local sales had been increased due chiefly to concentrated advertising and better marketing methods. Present price is 28 cents at the factory.

Only one cheese factory in the county, Maple Leaf Plant in Rawdon, was closed this year. In spite of a number of factories closed in previous years, cheese production this year was up, it was stated. Present at the meeting, all of whom spoke briefly, were Hector Arnold, of Campbellford, vice president; cheese instructors J. M. Wilkinson, of Tweed; Ernest Henderson, of Picton; George Pollard, Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P. for Hastings West, and Roscoe Robson, M.P.P. for Hastings East.

HASTINGS-FRONTENAC

ST. PETER'S W.M.S.

The Women's Missionary Society held their December meeting in the home of Mrs. Walter Brett. The meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. Field Allen, with a "call to worship", and the Christmas Hymn, "Oh Little Town of Bethlehem."

The Scripture was read by Mrs. Alvey, and a duet was sung by Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Alvey. Mrs. Johnston at the piano.

Mrs. Blakely gave a full report of the year's activities, stressing our work among the Chinese and Indians in Canada. Mrs. Donahue, the Supply Secretary, told of money received and of a splendid bale sent to Rev. David Heslop for the Indians on the Okanagan Reserve.

Our Treasurer, Mrs. Curry, reported our allocation fully met, also the receipt of a gift from the estate of the late Mrs. John McCaffrey, one of our oldest and most faithful members.

Miss Vankleek presented the slate of Officers for 1955, which were accepted.

President, Mrs. Field Allen; 1st Vice President, Miss A. M. Vankleek; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. C. Spencer; Treasurer, Mrs. F. Curry; Rec. Secretary, Mrs. D. Blakely; Corr. Secretary, Mrs. C. Spencer; Supply Secretary, Mrs. J. Armstrong; Assistant, Mrs. Donahue; Press Secretary, Miss E. Heslop; Assistant, Mrs. C. Woods; Glad Tidings Secretary, Mrs. W. BANCROFT VOTES FOR LIQUOR AND BEER STORE

Bancroft village will have a combined liquor and beer store, following Wednesday's vote which saw 504 voting for the store and 322 against. The vote was 60.11 per cent for the store, with 60 per cent being required to carry.

Dry since 1938, Wednesday's vote was the second in the past four years. In 1950 the question was voted on but was turned down when 17 additional votes were required to achieve the necessary 60 per cent approval.

There was high interest in Wednesday's vote with 831 voters out of a possible 950, or 82 per cent turning out at the polls. Five votes were spoiled.

The liquor and beer warehouse will be established by the Ontario Liquor Board.

$20,000 FIRE LOSS NEAR TWEED

Damage estimated at $20,000, resulted from a disastrous fire at Courneya Poultry Farm, on the Sulphide Road, on Sunday morning, December 12, when a large building, 112 by 24 feet, containing valuable equipment, was levelled. Stored in the building was brooding equipment, an electric egg grader with a capacity of ten thousand eggs, two hundred new egg cases, recently arrived, all feeding equipment for small chicks (the most valuable equipment), and other small articles. The three-storey structure was hot-water-heated and a new furnace had recently been installed. It had a large 12-foot basement. It was a modern building and had been air-conditioned for small chicks. There was 9,000 feet of piping in the structure.

Ralph Courneya has been operating the poultry farm since the death of his father. 800 chicks had been removed from the building recently and 7,000 more were scheduled to come. Fortunately, they had not arrived previous to the fire. The building, which was constructed 20 years ago, had been kept in perfect condition, due to the fact that it was the maturing ground for small chicks.

BATAWA VILLAGE IS ILLUMINATED

Batawa village is reported to be a lighted Christmas fairland this year, with thousands of colored lights twinkling from every building. Seven big Christmas trees, all lighted, have been placed at various points; the community and factory buildings have been strung with lights, some completely outlined. Churches, the staff house and community centre are also a blaze of color. Company officials estimate that over twice as many lights have been strung this year. Along with the decorations in individual homes, the whole community presents an appearance unequalled by any other for its size.
